

LAST ARSENAL OF SERBS HAS FALLEN

Germans Take Krusevac, Ninety Miles South of Danube—French and Montenegrin Forces Winning—Roumania to Remain Neutral—Russians Launch Great Offensive on Riga-Dvinsk Front and Germans Claim Russ Losses Are Heavy.

By Associated Press.
Berlin, via London, November 8.—The Serbian town of Krusevac, on the railroad about 50 miles northwest of Nish, has been occupied by German troops, according to today's official statement given out by army headquarters staff.

With the fall of Krusevac, what is said to be the only arsenal left the Serbians passed into hostile hands.

It also marks a southerly march of nearly 90 miles into the interior of Serbia by Teutonic forces.

London, November 8.—The French are continuing to press their advance into Bulgaria northeast of Strumitsa, a British contingent aiding them, a Saloniki dispatch states.

But difficulties of the terrain make the progress slow.

Likewise Paris advices declare the French forces are following up their successes north of Philip, where a junction with the Serbians on the Babuna range is said to be imminent.

On the extreme west of the Balkan front the Montenegrins claim to be holding the Austrians near Grahovo, inflicting severe losses upon them in desperate battles.

The intention of Roumania to remain neutral, at least for the present, is emphasized in dispatches from Bucharest.

Berlin, via London, November 8.—A determined offensive move by the Russians near Riga along the line of the Dvina river to Dvinsk is reported today.

It is said the attacks were repulsed with heavy losses.

STANLEY'S LEAD REDUCED TO 338

By Associated Press.
Louisville, Ky., November 8.—Announcement was made today that a recount of ballots in the first eleven wards of the city of Louisville, cast in Tuesday's gubernatorial election, had trimmed the unofficial majority of former Congressman A. O. Stanley, democrat, from 585 to 338.

LINER AFIRE

By Associated Press.
New York, November 8.—The French Line steamship Rochambeau has a fire in the reserve coal bunker according to a message received at the French Line today from the Captain, which stated that the ship is not in danger but has turned toward Halifax, and that the fire is being fought with all facilities.

The vessel has on board 421 passengers.

MAYOR-ELECT DIES TODAY

Tiffin, O., November 8.—Rush Abbott, 59, elected mayor of Tiffin last Tuesday by the largest plurality ever given a Republican candidate in this city, died today.

CRUISER IS SUNK

Berlin, via London, November 8.—The small German cruiser Undine has been torpedoed and sunk by a submarine off the Swedish coast, it was officially announced today.

British submarines have recently been active in the Baltic, and the Undine was doubtless the victim of one of these British undersea craft.

Nearly all the crew of the cruiser, which had a complement of 275 men, was saved.

MAMMOTH CORN CROP

By Associated Press.
Washington, November 8.—The nation's corn crop this year was the most valuable ever grown.

Based on prices paid farmers November 1, it is worth nearly $2,000,000,000—$1,913,025,000 in exact figures.

In size, it is second only to the record crop of 1912. The production was 3,090,509,000 bushels, or 34,000,000 less than the country's previous biggest corn crop.

POINTS TO THE SCRIPTURE AS HIS SUPPORT

By Associated Press.
Washington, November 8.—President Wilson finds support in the scriptures for his policy of national defense and in a letter to Seth Low, who wrote the president commending his Manhattan Club speech, quotes verses from the thirty-third chapter of Ezekiel.

The letter, made public at the White House, the president said:

"I am particularly gratified that you should so fully concur in the position I took in my speech to the Manhattan Club.

"There is a quotation from Ezekiel which I have had very much in mind recently in connection with these important matters."

The president then quotes the second, third, fourth, fifth and sixth verses of Chapter 33.

WHITLOCK HAS CLEAN RECORD

By Associated Press.
Washington, November 8.—Secretary Lansing announced today that the German military authorities in Belgium have expressed to American Minister Brand Whitlock their regrets that published reports should have made it appear that he was leaving Belgium as a result of objections from the German government.

Minister Whitlock was assured that the German authorities regretted his departure.

Secretary Lansing added that no official communication of any sort had passed between the Berlin and Washington governments respecting Mr. Whitlock's status.

Mr. Whitlock will sail from Amsterdam on Wednesday of this week, for a vacation due to ill health.

WHITLOCK IS ON WAY HOME

By Associated Press.
The Hague, via London, November 8.—Brand Whitlock, American minister to Belgium, who arrived at the Hague yesterday on his way to the United States on leave of absence, will go to Rotterdam tomorrow, whence he will sail for New York on the steamship Raydam.

Mr. Whitlock said his departure from Belgium was in no way connected with his efforts to delay the execution of Miss Edith Cavell or with any political question.

EXPECT BURTON TO ENTER RING

Former United States Senator Theodore E. Burton May Announce Candidacy for Presidency This Evening—Confers With Many Party Leaders in Columbus Today—Willis Announcement Paves Way for Burton.

By Associated Press.
Columbus, November 8.—Announcement of former Senator Theodore E. Burton's candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination was looked for here today by his friends, following a series of in-the political situation in Ohio.

These conferences included Senator Warren G. Harding, Chairman Edward Jones of the State Executive Committee, Chairman W. L. Parmenter of the State Central Committee, Former Congressman Ralph D. Cole, Lieutenant Governor John H. Arnold, Public Utilities Commissioner Lawrence K. Langdon and Budget Commissioner E. M. Fullington.

Efforts were made at these conferences, it was said, to find a candidate for the United States senatorial nomination to succeed Senator Pomeroy next year, who can receive the united support of Republican leaders.

Political observers pointed out as significant the fact that Charles F. Dick of Akron, an avowed candidate for the senatorial nomination, was not expected here today.

Governor Willis' statement, made last night, that he would not seek presidential honors but would be a candidate for re-election as governor gave a big impetus to Mr. Burton's decision, those associated with him said.

Following a conference with Governor Willis in the governor's private office for more than an hour this morning, Mr. Burton made engagements to talk with half a dozen Republican leaders later in the day, for the purpose of smoothing out

REFUSES TO SUPPORT PLAN

By Associated Press.
Washington, November 8.—Representative Claude Kitchin, Democratic leader of the House, told President Wilson today, after a long conference with him, that he could not support the administration's program for national defense and that he would oppose the program in a personal capacity only and not as majority leader.

Mr. Wilson outlined the army and navy plans for the next session of Congress and for the next five years and sought to influence the majority leader to be in harmony with them.

Mr. Kitchin stated his views frankly to the president, directing his opposition chiefly to the naval program.

BRITISH ARE SURPRISED

By Associated Press.
London, November 8.—Notwithstanding the forecasts of the American note to Great Britain, which had been sent from Washington by correspondents of the British press, surprise is the predominant tone of the majority of the British newspapers in their comment on the document.

The country has been too deeply wrapped up in the consideration of pressing European problems during the past few weeks to give much attention to American opinion, and apparently it is now aware that the treatment of American shipping might furnish ground for a serious controversy between the two governments.

Willis Will Again Seek the Governorship.
ISSUES TERSE STATEMENT
Feels That, in the Interest of Party Harmony, He Should Not Become an Active Candidate For the Presidential Nomination at This Time. Says Many Republicans in Ohio Worthy of Support For Presidency.

Columbus, Nov. 8.—Governor Willis will seek renomination as a candidate for governor of Ohio. The governor announces his intention in a formal statement, in which he says:
"During the past few months many of my friends in Ohio and outside of Ohio have urged me to become a candidate for the Republican nomination for the presidency in 1916. This generous attitude on their part has received much friendly mention through the columns of the press. For all these expressions of confidence I am profoundly grateful. The office of president of the United States is of such high character that one can scarcely with propriety be an avowed candidate for it as he might for another office of lesser dignity; neither could he well decline nomination if it came to him under circumstances personally and politically honorable.
"Appreciative as I am in the fullest degree of the generous and enthusiastic support proffered by my friends, especially in Ohio and throughout the west and northwest, yet I am firm in the belief that in the selection of candidates party unity and party welfare should have the first consideration. To accomplish this, it is desirable that contests within the party be so far as possible eliminated; personal ambitions and petty disappointments should be sunk for party welfare and public good.
"Personally, I am willing to make any reasonable sacrifice to promote the welfare of the party that has honored me and in whose principles I believe. Not unmindful of the loyalty of the host of friends in Ohio and elsewhere who have urged me to become an active candidate for the presidency, I nevertheless am of the opinion that such action on my part at this time would not promote harmony in the party in Ohio, no matter what the outcome of the contest might be. I have, therefore, decided to be a candidate for renomination for the office of governor of Ohio.
"In the nine months that the Republican party has been in power in Ohio there has been more of accomplishment for the interests of the people than has even been seen before in a similar period; vast and intricate political machines, cunningly constructed by the preceding state administration, have been pounded to fragments and thrown upon the junk pile; new constructive laws have been passed restoring government to the people and protecting the public against the peril of political autocracy, yet the work is not quite finished, and I am willing to aid in completing the job undertaken by the Republican party in Ohio. Having put our hand to the plow, we will plow on to the end of the furrow and see that all noxious weeds are turned under as we go.
"Having decided in the interest of party harmony to ask a renomination as governor, I urge all Ohio Republicans in the same spirit to put forth every effort to promote unity in the party. There are many eminent Republicans in Ohio worthy of the party's support for the presidency; let us unite on one of them and present him to the nation as our candidate; let us unite in upholding the work of the Republican party in Ohio and go into the campaign of 1916 to win in state and nation."

Carothers is not now in Mexico, having gone to Douglas, Ariz., in connection with the situation which arose at the border town at the time of Villa's attack upon Agua Prieta. HURST LANDS
APPOINTMENT

Columbus, Nov. 8.—J. Edward Hurst of New Philadelphia was appointed a member of the state liquor license commission by Governor Willis to succeed Byron M. Clendenning, Democrat, of Cincinnati, whom the governor removed two weeks ago for having participated in the referendum on the McDermott bill. Hurst formerly was a member of the Ohio senate and is editor of the New Philadelphia Times. He is a dry advocate and accompanied William J. Bryan on his recent prohibition tour through the state. The continuity of Hurst's position is contingent upon the decision of the supreme court in Clendenning's appeal from the action of the governor in ousting him.

RAIN FROM A CLEAR SKY.

An Alleged Phenomenon Linked With the Failing of Dew.

In English dictionaries we find the word serain defined as a fine rain which sometimes falls from a clear sky shortly after sunset. The word is French, but has become the international designation in meteorological works for this alleged phenomenon, which is always described as quite rare.

Has the phenomenon a real existence?

The fact that a stereotyped description of it has been passed on from one meteorological writer to another since the latter part of the eighteenth century is by no means conclusive evidence on this point, for science has perpetuated many myths by the process of reiteration.

Professor Gustav Hellmann, in a recent publication of the Russian Meteorological Institute, sees in the conception of the serain merely the survival of the old fashioned belief that evening dew falls from the (clear) sky, and he finds that the serain of early French writers was identical with that "evening dampness" which was supposed to be injurious to human health.

It still remains possible that rain may sometimes fall from a clear sky, though this is not likely to be a phenomenon peculiar to the early evening. Some cases can be explained as due to the oblique falling of raindrops, carried horizontally by the wind, when the clouds from which they came have passed away.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

AMERICANS
ANXIOUSLY

ENGLAND'S REPLY TO AMERICAN NOTE

Not Believed at Washington That London Will Yield.

Washington, Nov. 8.—Increased irritation in this country against Great Britain, particularly among business interests, is expected to be the chief and immediate effect of the American note protesting against British interference with neutral trade.

There is little or no expectation here that Great Britain will yield in response to the latest American note or other notes which may be written. It is believed rather that the British are determined to pursue their present course to the end of the war unless circumstances make it convenient for them to relax existing measures. Great Britain already has replied to the majority of the American complaints, contending there is ample legal justification for all she is doing. She already has indicated that she expects ultimate settlement in an arbitration tribunal. She has a general arbitration treaty with the United States, and this government is also bound by the so called Bryan peace treaty to submit to an impartial investigation any matter of dispute between the two governments.

It is admitted in official quarters that the administration has no answer ready to questions as to what it will do to back up its note. It is said the administration has no thought, however, of invoking force against the British.

Happy Days
Everybody's happy with an Estate Oak in the household; seems as though this stove has a way all its own of making firm friends of the family.
"Ma" likes it 'cause it's such a gentlemanly stove to have 'round the house; no dirt—no smoke—no puffing—ever. "Pa" likes it, too, 'cause it has such a small appetite; once or twice a day is often enough to feed it, and soft coal is its favorite food. "Of course Willie's strong for it." The Estate Oak saves him a good many trips to the coal bin, and a whole lot of luggin' ashes, too.
Fact of the matter is, an
will keep going for more than fifty hours on only one charge of soft coal, and without any other attention than to empty the ash-pan—say, once in twenty-four hours.
The stove that will do this—that is guaranteed to do it—is worth knowing, isn't it? Come in and let us show it to you; come as soon as you can.

Speaking of Roads

Each day the number of men who fear that the present plan of "good road" building is not going to prove equal to the demand for better highways, is steadily increased.

At the same time the number of thinking men who favor a lower first cost and more time, money and energy in keeping the roads in repair is growing larger every day.

The enormous first cost of the brick roads and the inability of the brick plants to keep pace with the present demand for their product make the only really good permanent road almost impossible so far as any great extent of mileage is concerned.

At the present rate of building brick roads the present generation will have passed away before any very considerable portion of Fayette's hundreds of miles of roads are paved.

It is now generally conceded that the costly macadam road will not last without constant repair and that a considerably less amount of money than that expended in repair on the costly road would keep in excellent shape the much less expensive road.

One of our influential citizens, a close observer of all matters of public interest, makes the assertion that the interest alone on the first cost of one of the expensive roads, either brick or macadam would keep a road of comparatively modest first cost in excellent condition all the time.

While all the costly and tedious plans are being tried out it might result in a great deal of good in the years to come and great saving certainly of the people's money to try out the plan of building a road, at moderate first cost, of good material and provide for its repair.

Certainly it would do no harm to try out the less expensive plan and their are some mighty "hard headed" citizens who sincerely believe that the solution of our present problem will then be found.

A Surprising Result

Anyone who entertains any doubt that the people these days are voting as they please, regardless of party, that they refuse to allow anyone to do their thinking for them and that they make up their own minds need only to look at the result of the vote last Tuesday on the proposal to amend the constitution of the state so as to extend the term of county officials.

The result of that vote will be sufficient evidence to dispel any lingering doubt on those matters.

Not one of the four proposed amendments submitted to the voters had as little said in opposition to it—in fact no one was openly and loudly opposing its adoption. No amendment proposal had more work done in its support and more outspoken advocacy save possibly only the proposed state wide prohibition amendment.

In every county of the state every county official, practically, was openly supporting the proposal and laboring earnestly for its adoption. The press was either advising the adoption of the amendment or keeping silent if opposed.

And what happened?

That proposal was literally buried under an avalanche of hostile votes.

While the other proposals were defeated by from twenty to fifty thousand votes, that particular one was defeated by nearly three hundred and fifty thousand.

Who says the people don't know what they want?

Isn't it a mistake in view of that result to assert that the people can be led astray on those proposals? If the people can be led in these matters against their desires it looks very much like the leader hasn't yet been found.

An Official's Private Life

Unfortunately there are still a few officials, appointive and elective, in the public service who do not realize that a part of their duties as officials is to maintain a proper standard of living in private life.

Every day the number of officials who fail to realize this important part of their duties, is growing smaller.

The younger generation, very properly, regard men who are chosen by popular vote or by the appointing power, as men fit to enter the public service, as men whose private as well as official conduct is above reproach.

Public officials are, in a measure, examples to the younger generations whether they will it so or not and the men who are laboring under the mistake that selection to the public service warrants them in letting down the bars of morals in their private life, are not only doing themselves an injustice but they are destroying some of the highest and most valuable ideals of the oncoming generations.

The people both old and young should have respect for their public servants. That they cannot have if the private life of the public servants is not what it should be, even though there may be no just cause for complaint as to official conduct.

However, in these days, there is grave danger that an official who is below par in his private life is not up to standard officially, and if he is for a time that, sooner or later, the official standard will fall to the lower level.

BEAUTIFUL WEATHER.

Beautiful weather in town today:

"Beautiful weather!" you hear them say.

Beautiful weather somewhere, my dear,

Even when shadows are hanging here;

Sunshine and singing most all the time

Somewhere, darling, in some sweet clime.

Beautiful weather, with skies above

Clear as a bell when the heart's in love

With duty and kindness and keeping on

With the old vocations from dawn to dawn;

Beautiful weather in street and lane

When the spirit is mounting on love's refrain.

Beautiful weather in field and mart

When beautiful weather is in the heart,

And birds are singing and all the room

Of life is fragrant with rare perfume

And musk of honey and dew of dream.

When love smiles down with its golden beam.

Beautiful weather! 'Tis always so

When hearts are contented with all they know

Of peace and gladness, and spend their day

Making life beautiful all the way

With singing and sunshine and rest from strife,

Just to make beautiful weather of life.

MAKE EXERCISE PLAY.

To Get the Best Results It Must Be Thoroughly Enjoyed.

When you exercise, play. That is one of the points most strongly urged to the attention of the public in recently published public health reports.

No matter whether you are walking, gardening, exercising in a gymnasium or playing golf, keep your exercise free from the spirit of drudgery and make it all recreation. Make it as enjoyable as anything you may do throughout the entire day. If you don't much of the good that it might do you are lost.

"The very best thing a man can do," says the report, "is to make a hobby of his exercise. No matter how poor the hobby, if it induces outdoor exercise it is perfectly justifiable."

The woman who is obliged to take her baby out for a two hours' airing every day is far more fortunate than she often realizes.

The only advice the report offers the man who is going to take up a hobby for the benefit of the resulting exercise is to choose one that permits of its being followed the year round rather than one that depends upon seasons of the year. For that reason the amateur gardener or chicken fancier is far more fortunate in his choice than the amateur geologist, botanist or ornithologist. The latter must wait on the seasons and must find favorable locations for indulging their hobbies, while the former have year round pastimes.

OUR MISNAMED RUINS.

The Mesa Verde Cliff Dwellings Are Really Complete Towns.

Many visitors to the prehistoric cliff dwellings of the Mesa Verde National park, in southwestern Colorado, says a government publication, are astonished to find that what is commonly described as a dwelling is not properly a dwelling at all, but a village or city.

The celebrated Cliff Palace is not a palace. Neither is Spruce Tree House a house, nor Balcony House a house. Each of these is a complete town which once, in the dim ages before the earliest Indian tradition, was an organized community, often of considerable size.

The arrangement of houses in a cliff dwelling of the size of Cliff Palace, for example, is characteristic and intimately associated with the distribution of the social divisions of the inhabitants. The population was composed of a number of units, possibly clans, each of which had its own social organization more or less distinct from others, a condition that appears in the arrangement of rooms. The rooms occupied by a clan were not necessarily connected, although generally neighboring rooms were distinguished from one another by their uses.

In a Maori Wooing House.

Among the Maoris sometimes in the white matoro (the wooing house), a building in which the young of both sexes assembled for play, songs, dances, etc., there would be at stated times a meeting. When the fires burned low a girl would stand up in the dark and say: "I love So-and-so. I want him for my husband." If he coughed (sign of assent) or said "Yes" it was well; if only dead silence she covered her head with her robe and was ashamed. This was not often, as she generally had managed to ascertain, either by her own inquiry or by sending a girl friend, if the proposal was acceptable. On the other hand, sometimes a mother would attend and say, "I want So-and-so for my son."

If not acceptable there was generally mocking, and she was told to let the young people have their house (the wooing house) to themselves.

His Master Stroke.

"George Ferguson," said his wife, looking with crushing scorn at the gaudy rug he had bought at a special sale, "I wonder if ever in your life you knew a bargain when you saw it?"

The case was critical. Mr. Ferguson saw that something bold and decisive must be done, and his mind worked quickly.

"Why, yes, Laura," he said. "When I wanted a wife I picked out the nicest, sweetest little woman in the whole world, and I got the best bargain any man ever got. There, there, pet!"—Chicago Tribune.

Life is short. Let us not throw any of it away in useless resentment.

TWO-MILL LEVY BECOMES EFFECTIVE IN DECEMBER

First Installment of Two-Mill Road Levy, Voted at Recent Election Will Be Available for Use in February of Coming Year—County to Have More Than Half Million for Good Roads During Coming Five Years.

The first installment of the two-mill levy for road improvement in Fayette county will be certified to County Treasurer Duff for the coming December collection of taxes and as a result the first installment, amounting to about $40,000 will be distributed to the various taxing districts in February and the work of improving the roads in the various districts can be started early next spring.

In making the certification to County Treasurer Duff, County Auditor Pine is acting under a ruling received on the question of when the first installment of the two-mill levy would be collected.

The two-mill levy will continue in force for five years, and in that time the county will probably have more than a half million dollars available for road building, and the result, if the money is expended judiciously, will be that Fayette county will have roads equal to those of any county in the state. The original cost of Fayette's highways was $880,000, and this amount was paid long ago.

The county budget carries a .60 mill levy for road repair and the levy will bring in approximately $27,600 for the fiscal year ending September 1, 1916.

The second installment of the two-mill levy will be collected next June and distributed about August first, so that next year alone Fayette county, outside of the State Aid fund which this year was thousands of dollars and which will be greater next year, will have $80,000 available for road building under the two-mill levy, and an additional $27,600 for repairing roads as usual. With the state aid fund the amount will total between $125,000 and $150,000 for the coming year.

As a result of the first installment being collected at the coming semi-annual collection of taxes, the work of both the County Auditor and County Treasurer will be doubled for the next few weeks.

WORK IS RESUMED ON THE NEW UNION STATION

Work on Washington's splendid new Union Station was resumed Monday morning, when the contractor, with a gang of men, resumed the work of excavating for the concrete foundation and basement rooms.

It is the intention of the contractor to rush the work upon the building, employing as large a force of men as he can wield to advantage and completing the station at the earliest possible moment, which will probably be sometime after the first of the coming year.

Had work not been halted the building would have been finished sometime in December, as provided for in the contract, it is announced.

In addition to work opening on the new station, Service Director

Gerstner early Monday morning started the work of making the fill on Water street from Temple to Paint street, and P. J. Burke will immediately move the old "Farmer's Hotel" back to his new property line.

The earth for filling in Water street is being removed from the Hillery land south of Temple street and back of the Ice Factory, where the channel of Paint creek will be straightened.

With proper weather the street will be filled in and opened to traffic before the first of the coming month and Paint street will then be completely closed. Until the new "missing link" is opened, Paint street will be open sufficiently to pass the new union station site.

"THIRTY"

J. R. Marshall, Veteran Newspaper Publisher, Succumbs to Long Illness and Answers Final Summons Early Sunday Morning.

When the death angel summoned J. R. Marshall on Sunday morning the career of a veteran newspaper man, of the old school and a practical printer who had mastered his trade, was brought to its close.

Mr. Marshall learned the printers' trade as an apprentice boy in New York state, but ambition, early in his young manhood, beckoned him to the western country where he gained prominence as one of those editors and printers who, combining practical printing with editorial work and publishing, have done so much in the earlier days of their communities.

The newspaper and job printing offices of the smaller cities and towns when Mr. Marshall was in his prime were, as they are now, places of great activity and importance in the community. In those days, however, the work of the editor and publisher was much more laborious and trying, in every way, than it is now days. Mr. Marshall served the communities in which he conducted the newspaper and job printing business in the days before type setting machines were in use, before the linotype was known and when the old cylinder presses were marvels of speed.

Generous and kindly disposed he was impressionable and outspoken in his writings—typical of a time that has passed away. His life work he performed with all enthusiasm and positiveness which his profession and the time demanded.

Intensely partisan and loyal to his friends his pathway was not always smooth and pleasant but he worked with his brain and his hands doing always the very best he knew.

He lived and served the public in times when the issues of the day were acute and partisan feeling was intense. Now, that "thirty" has been called and the veteran newspaper man has turned in his life's copy, his family and friends know, when the recording angel makes up the great forms "Marshall's" work will be approved by the Editor of all.

Mr. Marshall's death followed a long illness covering a period of eight years.

He is survived by his wife, three children, Miss Nell at home, Mrs. Fred Wilson, of S. Solon, and Maurice Marshall, of Pittsburg, and one grandchild, Margaret Wilson, who have the sympathy of their many friends in this community.

Mr. Marshall was aged 72 years, and his death occurred at five o'clock Sunday morning.

Funeral services will be held at the residence on Washington avenue Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock, and interment will be made in the Washington cemetery. Rev. P. J. Hennessy, assisted by Rev. John Dalbey, will have charge of the service.

The DeWees studio is now open for business, in charge of Mr. Art M. Brown, of St. Joseph, Mo., an old friend of Mr. DeWees. Come and see about your Xmas Photos. 263112

FRIEND OF LOCAL MAN HONORED IN JAPAN

Mr. Almer Hegler is in receipt of a copy of "The Japanese Times," published in Tokyo, October 8th, containing an interesting account of a Bible graciously accepted by the Emperor of Japan as a coronation gift and presented by Dr. E. A. Sturge, a personal friend of Mr. Hegler.

The paper reports that speaking of the object of his mission Dr. Sturge said that when asked by the Christian Japanese of America to come to Japan to present their Bible to the Emperor he could not refuse the great honor.

The Emperor expressed satisfaction both with the gift and an accompanying poem, composed by Dr. Sturge.

A reception and dinner which was pronounced one of the most numerous attended and representative gatherings which Tokyo has had for years, was tendered to Dr. Sturge at the Imperial Hotel.

A couple of months ago Mr. and Mrs. Hegler received a postal from Dr. Sturge saying, "I am off for Japan in a rather small ship. If I go down like Sub. F-4 remember me 4-F-er-more.—E. A. Sturge."

Consequently Mr. and Mrs. Hegler have awaited further word concerning Dr. Sturge's safe arrival and the success of his project with much interest.

LIFE-SAVING DEVICE INSTALLED IN THIS CITY

Dr. G. S. Hodson has installed in his hospital a "Lung Motor," one of the great life-saving devices which has been able to accomplish wonderful results as a mechanical respirator.

While Dr. Hodson has purchased the lung motor especially for the hospital use it will be always at the disposal of any emergency case.

It is claimed the lung motor has a big advantage over the pulmonary in its construction and can be used any time or place without necessitating a compressed air tank.

It is especially valuable in being able to resuscitate from drowning, fumes from gas, electrical shocks, hospital cases and asphyxia neonatorum, and in many cities the Board of Public Safety has purchased a Lung Motor for the use of city hospitals and as a matter of general protection to the public.

SABINA WOMAN MAKES COMPLAINT

A woman of Sabina appealed to Mayor Coffey, Sunday evening, to locate her husband and two other men of Sabina, whom she declared had come to this city to meet certain girls in this city.

The Mayor was informed that the three men had come to this city in a buggy. A search was made for them, but they could not be located. However the police will watch for the trio in the future, and if caught will give each the limit. The men are said to be well known married men of Sabina.

AGED GRANDMOTHER

So Weak She Could Hardly Stand—Made Strong by Vinol.

Right here in Washington Court House we have seen such excellent results from Vinol that it is a pleasure to know it is doing so much good for old people in other parts of the country.

Woodbridge, N. J.,—"My Grandma was recovering from the grippe and was so weak she could hardly stand, and as she keeps house for my father and myself, she could not get around at all. She had taken cod liver oil and many other medicines, but nothing seemed to do her any good. At last we heard of Vinol and tried it, and Grandma commenced to feel better right away, and got strong very soon, so she gets around as well as ever. We all praise Vinol for it is a splendid medicine." Myrtle H. Bunn.

The reason Vinol is so successful in restoring strength to the aged is because of the rare combination of tonic iron, the curative medicinal extracts of fresh cods' livers, beef peptone and mild native wine. It supplies iron to the blood, quickens the appetite, aids digestion, promotes proper assimilation of food, and enriches the blood, and brings back the strength of renewed health. YOUNG SEALS NOW PLENTY.

The Protective Law of 1912 Has Done More Than Was Expected.

That the fur seals of the Pribilof islands have so increased since the passage of the protective law of 1912 that the resumption of limited commercial sealing is advisable for the welfare of the seal herds is the conclusion of the special commission sent to the islands last summer by the bureau of fisheries of the department of commerce.

The law of 1912 provided that the killing of all seals, with the exception of a few needed by the natives of these northern islands, should be stopped for five years and that 5,000 three-year-old males should be maintained as an annual breeding reserve during the life of the treaty suspending pelagic sealing which was concluded by the United States, Russia, Japan and Great Britain in 1911.

The commission finds that the law of 1912 has fully done what was expected of it, the annual herd of pups during 1914 being almost twice as large as it was in 1909. The commission has reached the conclusion that there is a considerable overstock of male seals and that "this constitutes the principal undesirable feature of the herd as found in 1914. The welfare of the herd demands that some of them should be killed in 1915."

This year there are available to be killed 31,751 males, from whose skins the government could get a revenue amounting to $32,745, whereas the continued suspension of sealing will bring about a useless and even harmful excess of males and a minimum loss in skins of $2,700,000 to be divided among the nations involved.—Outlook.

Making Coffins of Glass.

Made of two pieces, which are bound together by heavy metal bands, a glass casket has been invented which will soon be introduced for burial purposes. This serves both as a coffin and vault, as it requires no protection against the chemical action of the earth. When closed it is hermetically sealed and is proof against both air and water. The two sections are molded in heavy glass, which gives the casket great strength. Its general form is the same practically as that of other burial receptacles. The chief point advanced in its favor is its obvious qualities of durability.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Green Proper Color For Freshmen.

"Resolved, That green is the proper color with which to adorn the members of the freshmen class of Hamline university.

"Resolved further, That since heads are the most conspicuous portion of the anatomies of said persons green caps shall cover the domes of all freshmen hereafter and that the caps be decorated with a button."

This, in effect, is a resolution passed recently by the student council of Hamline university.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Wild Buffalo Increasing.

Government authorities of Alberta, Canada, have made as reliable a census as possible of the wild buffalo of the province and announce that the number is not less than 400, probably nearer 500. The greater portion of these range in northern Alberta and the remainder in the Mackenzie district. Hunting, of course, is prohibited. The Royal northwest mounted police have the animals under their protection, and any infraction of the law protecting them is severely punished.

Artificial Coffee.

A young Japanese in Hyogo is reported to have invented artificial coffee almost equal in every respect to natural Brazilian coffee. As the result of chemical analysis by experts it is said that the goods now manufactured by the young inventor are more wholesome than the natural bean, while retaining all its flavor and quality.

Fun For the Tar.

A New Jersey hen spying a barrel of fine, soft tar, alighted thereon and laid an egg. There resulted a firmly bound sandwich, tar, egg and chicken in the order named. A woman and a man, who went to the rescue, were also held fast by the hands until the police were called and effected a rescue.—Exchange.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Hard Wax in the Ears.

Impacted cerumen in the ears interferes with hearing. Some cases of deafness are due wholly to the external auditory canal being filled up with hardened cerumen, and after this has been removed the hearing is restored. Where it is not convenient or possible to call upon a physician to have the wax taken out of the canal some one at home may give the necessary treatment, which is quite simple. Buy an ounce of glycerin and a medicine dropper. At bedtime drop five drops of the glycerin in the ear when lying down, with the affected ear uppermost. After dropping in the glycerin lie still in the same position for ten minutes. Then treat the other ear in the same manner if it needs attention. Continue this treatment for three consecutive nights. The morning of the fourth day syringe out the affected ear or ears (use a soft rubber ear syringe) with warm water, a tumblerful, in which one teaspoonful of phenol sodique has been stirred. This will bring away the wax, which has been softened and dislodged by the glycerin applications.

Golf's Hardest Shots.

"I have heard many debates as to the hardest and the easiest clubs to play," says Jerome D. Travers, the famous golfer, in the American Magazine. "I should say the hardest shot in the game, the one that has fewer masters, is the full iron shot to the green. Running a close second is the mashie pitch. There are fewer golfers by far who can play these two shots well than those who are good drivers or good putters. The easiest shot in golf is the drive, and the simplest is the putt. But as putting is almost purely a mental proposition it probably varies more with all players than any other shot.

"You see very few good sound iron players, especially among the amateurs in America. In England their iron play is much better."

Man's Will Is All His Own.

True education lies in learning to wish things to be as they actually are. It lies in learning to distinguish what is our own from what does not belong to us. But there is only one thing which is fully our own—that is our will or purpose. God, acting as a good king and a true father, has given us a will which cannot be restrained, compelled or thwarted. He has put it wholly in our power. . . . Nothing can ever force us to act against our will. If we are conquered it is because we have willed to be conquered.—Epictetus.

BIG DRIVE FOR 200 MEMBERS IS NEAR AT HAND

The drive for 200 new members for the Young Men's Christian Association, undertaken by the Dutch Treat Club, is to be launched early Tuesday morning, and when the smoke of battle lifts it is expected that the club will report the entire 200 members.

Those who take part in the "drive" are firm in the determination to make it a success.

The various teams meet tonight at six o'clock to perfect final plans for the work.

The workers will meet again tomorrow night to make reports.

POOL ROOM RAIDED BY MAYOR AND BELL

Mayor Coffey and Patrolman Bell made an unheralded visit, about eleven o'clock Saturday night, to the Elder pool room conducted in the basement immediately back of the Bryant Barber Shop on East Court street, and for a short time a lively scene ensued and there was a general scramble to get out of the place.

Mayor Coffey suspected that gambling was in progress, but found only a few cards. In attempting to take the crowd of some 25 to the mayor's office, many broke away and fled, making their escape, but, according to the police, many of their names have been obtained and charges will, in all probability, be filed within a short time.

Of those taken in charge by the police, Elder made arrangements for their appearance when the Mayor calls.

Late Monday afternoon no charges had been filed against any of those who were present at the time the raid was made.

CONNECTING LINK NOW BEING MADE

The work of improving that part of the Bloomington and Midway pike from the southern corner of the Bloomington school grounds to the intersection of the Danville pike and, incidentally, to the intersection of the paved roadway north of Bloomington, is now nearing completion, and by the end of this week the roadway will have been rebuilt of crushed stone and thoroughly rolled.

At the present time all of the stone is in place, the grading has all been done, much of the rolling has been finished, and the remaining work will be completed by rolling and the application of a top dressing of screenings, which will make the quarter of a mile of roadway equal to any macadam road in the county.

The section of road forms the connecting link between the splendidly improved Devalon road and the paved section of the Bloomington and Midway pike.

SALE WELL PATRONIZED

LARGE CONCOURSE AT DE WEESE FUNERAL

The DeWees home on Cherry street was filled with friends and many were unable to gain entrance, Saturday afternoon at half past two o'clock, when Rev. A. W. West conducted a simple, but beautiful service over all that was mortal of Mr. T. C. DeWees.

The gathering was one which gave evidence of the high esteem in which Mr. DeWees had been held and expressed the sorrow attendant upon his loss.

Rev. West supplemented the memoir with an appreciative talk, and read the hymns. A profusion of beautiful flowers surrounded the quiet sleeper, offering the sympathy of many friends.

A large number accompanied the family to the cemetery for the burial. The pallbearers were Messrs Howard McLean, Joe Gillespie, Herbert Campbell, Delbert Hays, George Perry, Al Thornton.

STRUCK BY AUTO LEG FRACTURED

Mr. Jack Bishop suffered a serious fracture of the right leg, just above the ankle, Saturday about 7:15 o'clock, when the Howard Harley automobile struck him as he was in the act of crossing the intersection of Main and East streets.

Mr. Bishop was knocked down and the front part of the auto passed over his legs, causing the fracture as above stated, and painfully bruising the left leg.

Mr. Bishop was given prompt medical and surgical attention and removed to his home, where he is resting fairly easy. It will probably be three or four months before the fracture is fully healed.

ONE OF BARNUM'S FREAKS.

How the Showman Pictured the Queer Animal to His Friend.

When P. T. Barnum was in the museum business in New York one of his most jovial friends was Gaylord Clark, a famous litterateur in the days of our fathers. They were a well matched pair of practical jokers. One day when Mr. Clark dropped in at the museum, as was his custom, Mr. Barnum, apparently much excited, hurried his friend into the private office and said: "Gaylord, I was about to send for you. I want your advice. I have a chance to purchase the most wonderful of all zoological freaks. It's at first a perfect fish, then it changes to a four-legged land animal, then it climbs trees and—"

"Bah! You're joking," interjected Mr. Clark.

"On my honor I am not," impressively replied the showman. "But the expense!"

"Oh, hang the expense!" interrupted Mr. Clark, brimful of enthusiasm over the business project of his friend. "If

British Position Is Vigorously Attacked

Note Holds Blockade Ineffective.

WILSON PRESENTS CASE

Says United States Can Not Submit to British Course.

CHAMPIONS NEUTRAL RIGHTS

Latest American Communication to London Insists That Great Britain Be Governed by International Law. Strong Protest Made Against British Interference With American Trade—Outstanding Features of the Note.

Washington, Nov. 8.—The American government, in its latest note to Great Britain, made public here, covering exhaustively British interference with American trade since the beginning of the European war, declares that the so called blockade instituted by the allies against enemy countries on March 11 is "ineffective, illegal and indefensible."

In the note the United States serves notice on Great Britain as follows:

1. That it does not recognize as legal and effective the British blockade of Germany and Austria-Hungary.
2. That it "can not submit" to curtailment of its neutral rights by measures which are "admittedly retaliatory and therefore illegal."
3. That it "must insist" that the relations between it and the British government be governed not by a policy of expediency but by established rules of international law.
4. That it unhesitatingly assumes the task of championing the integrity of neutral rights and will devote its energies to that end.

The note as a whole is a vigorous denunciation of the British government for the illegality of its measures in regard to neutral shipping. "Without justification," "ineffective," "illegal," "indefensible" and in violation of the law of nations," are some of this government's characterizations of the British practices.

In this note the United States accepts even more frankly than in the controversy with Germany the role of champion of neutral rights in the present war. Secretary Lansing says:

"It is of the highest importance to neutrals, not only of the present day but of the future, that the principles of international right be maintained unimpaired. This task of championing the integrity of neutral rights which have received the sanction of the civilized world against the lawless conduct of belligerents arising out of the great conflict which is now wasting the countries of Europe, the United States unhesitatingly assumes and to the accomplishment of that task it will devote its energies, exercising always that impartiality which from the outbreak of the war it has sought to exercise in its relations with the warring nations."

Strongest Point in Note.

The British government is summoned to obedience of international law in the sentence, regarded here as the strongest in the note: "The government of the United States desires to impress most earnestly upon his majesty's government that it must insist that the relations between it and his majesty's government be governed not by a policy of expediency but by those established rules of international conduct upon which Great Britain, in the past, has held the United States to account when the latter nation was a belligerent engaged in a struggle for national existence."

The note contains more than 10,000 words. It includes among other exhibits a long list of neutral ships which have been illegally interfered with by the British. This list, with the details in each case, constitutes, in effect, the indictment against Great Britain on which the note proper is based.

The note groups the causes for protest by the United States under three heads. Under these are covered all the acts which are held to have infringed upon American trade rights. The three groups of offenses are: First, the seizure and detention of vessels on the high seas on mere suspicion; second, the so called blockade policy; third, the unsatisfactory and unacceptable character of the regulations governing and the procedure of British prize courts.

The American protest on these three grounds of complaint is summarized in the note as follows:

"I believe it has been conclusively shown that the methods sought to be employed by Great Britain to obtain and use evidence of enemy destination of cargoes bound for neutral ports and to impose a contraband character upon such cargoes are without justification; that the blockade, upon which such methods are partly founded, is ineffective, illegal and indefensible; that the judicial procedure offered as a means for reparation for an international injury is inherently defective for the purpose, and that in many cases jurisdiction is asserted in violation of the law of nations."

Attacks British Course.

The newest matter in the note is that relating to the British prize courts. The note contends that the British prize courts acquire jurisdiction over neutral vessels by unlawful means. British authorities, acting under British orders in council, many of which this government regards as in contravention of international law, seize neutral vessels on the high seas on mere suspicion and take them into British ports, where they are within the territorial jurisdiction of British domestic law. The British have no right, it is alleged, to extend domestic law, such as the orders in council, to cover seizures on the high seas. The prize courts, it is further alleged, are bound by the same orders in council, which are held to be in violation of international law.

With reference to the British claim that the United States took a similar position in the civil war and referred foreign claimants to prize courts for redress, the United States note declares that Great Britain is mistaken.

Furthermore, it is pointed out by the United States that the British prize courts offer no means of reparation for disastrous effects of British practices upon American trade. Fear of British practices, it is asserted, has caused Americans to shun certain trades, has forced insurance rates up and acted as a general deterrent upon American trade with neutrals.

With respect to the British blockade, the United States holds that it is not a blockade in law, practice or effect. It is not effective in that German coasts are open to Scandinavian trade; it is not impartial because the northern neutrals are free to trade with Germany while the United States is virtually debared from such trade.

Finally, the note asserts that Great Britain herself had admitted increased exports to Scandinavian countries which are free to trade with Germany, and adds that certainly a blockade can not be considered effective if belligerents themselves are trading with the supposedly blockaded country.

Former Protest Renewed.

The protest of nearly a year ago against British seizures and detentions of American ships and cargoes is renewed with increased vigor. This government regrets that its hope, based on the British promises to exercise their belligerent rights "with every possible consideration for the interest of neutrals," has not been realized. Instead of becoming less burdensome the British practices have turned out to be "increasingly vexatious." International law has been violated, it is alleged, in seizures of neutral vessels on the high seas, in the conveying of them to British ports and in their detention in British jurisdiction while efforts are made to obtain evidence in proof of the presence of contraband or of hostile destination.

The United States demands that searches be made entirely at sea and that no vessel be taken, as Great Britain has been taking them, into port unless evidence is found on board her, in goods or in paper, sufficient to warrant a hearing before a prize court. The British procedure of introducing "extrinsic evidence" beyond what was obtained on the vessel herself is in conflict with previous British practice, the note asserts, and with that of all other maritime powers. The expert opinion of American naval officers and the orders of belligerent powers from 1888 to 1914 are cited to refute the British contention that search at sea is not practicable under modern conditions.

BIG PARADE IN THE WINDY CITY

Chicago, Nov. 8.—One hundred thousand persons marched through the streets in the downtown district in a parade protesting against Mayor Thompson's recent order reviving an old statute and closing the saloons of the city on Sunday. As the paraders marched, hundreds of men, supposedly acting in the interest of the city administration, took their names. But while the watchers industriously scribbled names on blank forms furnished them for this purpose, they were in turn scrutinized by representatives of the United Societies for Self-government. Their names were taken and grand jury action, it is said, will be demanded on charges of conspiracy.

PROBING FIRE IN BIG FACTORY

New York, Nov. 8.—With twelve identified dead recovered and a renewed search being made of the ruins for the bodies of other victims, a report indicating that the fire which swept the five-story factory building in Williamsburg was of incendiary origin became a matter of official investigation. Police Captain Shaw said that after careful study of the lists of persons employed in the various companies having headquarters in the burned building, they had reached the conclusion that it was unlikely that more than one other person beside twelve victims whose bodies have been found perished in the fire.

THE UBIQUITOUS TURKEY.

He Has Spread All Over the World Despite His Retiring Ways.

In every corner of the globe almost, at least where civilization has spread its epicurean taste, may be found the domesticated turkey—not, however, of his own volition. Never would he, in his wild state, have sought to cross the stormy seas to find green fields and pastures new.

He is not so constructed. He is not bold or adventurous of disposition. On the contrary, he is timid and much afraid of things he does not understand and when undisturbed is prone to let well enough alone and get along with his accustomed feeding grounds.

Again, as a flier the turkey is not a pronounced success. He flies ponderously, almost painfully and with great effort and only when very much frightened. His flight can be sustained for only a short distance, but what the wild turkey lacks as an aviator he fully makes up as a sprinter.

He can outrun a race horse, especially in his own native forest, where undergrowth and bushes seem but to add to his speed. But he could not have flown over the ocean even if he

The Vampire Bat.

The true vampire bat is a quite insignificant creature, not unlike our noctule bat in general appearance and size, but with a small "nose leaf" and no web between the hind legs. The really remarkable thing about it is its perfect adaptation for secret and painless bloodletting. Most bats have teeth very like those of the carnivora, with long canines and small incisors, but in the true bloodsucking vampire bat the incisors are very large and broad and exceedingly sharp edged, thus being able to inflict a shaving surface cut which causes no pain, but a great deal of bleeding. Indeed, not only does the sleeper very rarely wake under the winged bloodletter's attentions, but a bite may be inflicted on a person who is awake at the time.—London Graphic.

CABINET FORMED BY NEW PREMIER

Will Maintain Government's Plan of Neutrality.

GREECE NOT TO AID ALLIES

Austro-German Forces Operating In Serbia Reported to Be Advancing All Along the Line—French Said to Have Crossed the Bulgarian Frontier—Russians Active West of Riga and Near Dvinsk.

London, Nov. 8.—The Russians, according to a dispatch from Petrograd received here, have extended their attacks to the district west of Riga and thence to the south of Dvinsk. They are keeping the Germans on the move and the latter admit that in the region of Lake Sventen the Russians penetrated their lines. The Russians claim to have taken 8,000 prisoners by a thrust across the Stripa, while the Germans declare that they have captured 6,000.

The Italians continue their offensive, but on the western front the fighting consists only of local engagements.

M. Skouloudis, the new premier, accepted and performed the task of organizing the Greek cabinet, which, being composed of all the members of the Zaimis government with the exception of the ex-premier himself, will carry on the former government's policy of maintaining neutrality.

The new cabinet is at the mercy of the Venizelos majority in the chamber, but the impression is that no attempt will be made to turn it out, thus avoiding dissolution of parliament and a consequent election.

While the allies now can have little hope of Greece aiding them in the defense of Serbia, the belief is still held here that it is not too late to turn the tables on the invaders. The departure for the east of Lord Kitchener, after conferences in Paris with Premier Briand, General Gallieni, the war minister, and General Joffre, the commander in chief of the field forces, has given confidence that the campaign is to be carried on energetically by the man who knows the east better than almost anyone else.

Advices from Saloniki and other points show that much larger forces than were thought to be near the scene are being landed at Saloniki and are proceeding to points where it is believed they can do the most good.

Meanwhile, in northern and eastern Serbia and on the Montenegrin frontier big battles are in progress. The Austro-Germans claim to be advancing all along the line and to have reached the Morava river, which has been crossed at some points. In their advance they are picking up prisoners, guns and war material.

The Montenegrins, like their Serbian allies, are fighting stubbornly in defense of their country, and report that they have repulsed an attempt by the Austrians to cross the border from Herzegovina and captured four guns, a quantity of supplies and a few men. In the south the French are reported to be over the Bulgarian frontier, where they have taken several villages. It would appear, therefore, that the central powers, who have obtained their initial objective, the opening of the road to Sofia and Constantinople, have a lot of fighting ahead of them if Serbia is to be overwhelmed.

ser in tones that could be heard at the front gate.

"But your first offer was no offer at all, and how do you know that this man is not of the same stripe as the other?"

"My Lord, woman, haven't I got his business card here? There it is. Doesn't it say 'Charles Lightfoot, President of the Lightfoot Lecture Bureau?' And doesn't it give the street and number of his office?"

"Yes, it does," replied Mrs. Bowser after looking at the card. "But have you been up there to see if there is such a bureau? Have you made any inquiries about this Mr. Lightfoot?"

"No," thundered Mr. Bowser as he waved his arms about and stamped up and down the room.

"Mr. Bowser," quietly said Mrs. Bowser, after a moment, "let us talk this thing over in a sensible manner. It is a matter of interest to me as well as to you. I do not pretend to be a business woman, but you must admit that I have at least a fair amount of common sense. Don't get excited while I ask you a few questions. Will you talk with me?"

"Go ahead," growled the would be lecturer as he folded his arms and stood with his back against the mantel.

"There are four or five good business men who have offices near yours. Have you told them of this offer?"

"I can't say that I have. But what business is it of theirs?"

"I will venture to say they would tell you the same as I shall. Is he a responsible man? Has he a lecture bureau? Why did he come to you and make such an unheard of offer? Don't you know, Mr. Bowser, that the lecturer thinks himself well paid if he gets $50 or $75 a week? And he must be a well known lecturer to receive that. What sort of lecture have you got up your sleeve to be paid $200 a night? Perhaps Mr. Bryan would get that for one night, but I can't think of any other person who would."

"Find all the fault you can," growled Mr. Bowser.

"Did this Mr. Lightfoot claim that he has heard of you as a noted lecturer?" continued Mrs. Bowser.

"I told him that I had never lectured, but he said I could break into the field in a week and was sure I would be a drawing card."

"Well, take it that Mr. Lightfoot has a bureau and would sign a contract with you and carry out his part of it, there is still another side to which I wish to refer. You must take it kindly, Mr. Bowser. You must remember that as a wife I have your interests at heart. There are certain spots in your personal armor which would work against your success as a lecturer. Don't cringe now when I say that you are not a magnetic man."

"Oh, you have made a discovery, have you?" hoarsely whispered Mr. Bowser.

"I have always known it, but you are the man I loved and married and have an interest in. You have a very poor voice for delivery. Sometimes your voice is away down to the top button of your vest, and sometimes it is away up in G. It is often very hard for the cook to understand you. There would be times if you are speaking in the hall when people only ten feet away could not make out what you are saying. If it was a funny lecture they might laugh in the wrong place. The

Bowser Won't Lecture

Because Mrs. Bowser Laughed at Him.

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Mr. Bowser had carried a very sober face for two or three days.

He had not lost his wallet, fallen down the cellar stairs or missed a chance to go to the north pole.

Yet he talked very little and seemed to be thinking deeply.

The cook was worried for fear that her last apple pie had brought indigestion upon him, in which case she might expect to be sued for heavy damages.

Mrs. Bowser was puzzled, but not worried. Mr. Bowser can keep a secret sorrow locked up in his manly breast only two or three days. Then it comes out. If he should be guilty of murder he would be forced to make a confession and thereby hang himself.

In this case she gave him rope and said nothing. She did not even pretend to notice that a horse blanket had settled over his usually happy life. The hour came when the cat hid away under the piano, the nightingale ceased his song and the moon went behind a dark cloud to await events.

"Mrs. Bowser," began Mr. Bowser after a long and sulky silence, "several years ago words and actions on your part spoiled the prospects of my reaping a fortune."

"I don't remember any such event," replied Mrs. Bowser.

"Then let me call your memory to the fact that I had a great offer from a lecture bureau. I was to receive $200 a night, but you promptly cried me down, as you generally do. Rather than have a family row I gave up the project and have had to work like a hair. In ten years we would have owned a solid brick block. In twenty years our names would have been mentioned among the Rockefeller of the earth. You spoiled it all, you did!"

"Well, let us see if I did," said Mrs. Bowser. "The man who made you the offer was not a responsible person. I warned you against him at first sight of his face. Four days later he was arrested and sent to prison as a confidence man. Don't you remember that he wanted you to go as a witness against him? Was I to blame that he was any such man?"

Mr. Bowser remembered. He had to acknowledge to himself that Mrs. Bowser was right. He got off his high horse a little, but replied:

"This is an entirely different case."

"Oh, then I shall be glad to hear your statement."

"But you will oppose it."

"Perhaps I shall not. You have evidently received a new offer. Let us hear all about it. It is the duty of a wife to aid and encourage her husband. You have never found me backward in these duties."

"Yes, I have received a new offer," said Mr. Bowser after hitching around in an uneasy way. "Mr. Charles Lightfoot, president of the Lightfoot lecture bureau, called on me the other day. His call was for the purpose of making me an offer. After a short talk he made it. What do you think it was?"

Mr. Bowser wanted to reply that she thought it was an offer to borrow $10, but she did not want to hurt Mr. Bowser's feelings, and she therefore answered:

"Perhaps he made you an even better offer than the other."

"Two hundred and fifty dollars a night is the offer!" shouted Mr. Bow-

If Mackensen, Hindenburg, Von Bessler, Joffre, Kitchener and French had been chloroformed at sixty by Osler the history of the world war would surely have been different, although who can say it would have been better for any concerned?

Whether our football players could learn something of frightfulness by serving on the western battle front or Europe's soldiers could pick up points on the American gridiron remains a moot question.

There's nothing new nor especially commendable in the attitude of the man "opposed to war, but in case of need ready to support my country." That's the spirit of all peoples in all times, and the joker lies in the "case of need" proviso.

THINGS DOING
AT THE MOVIES

WONDERLAND.
Charming Hazel Dawn is a welcome visitor at the Wonderland Theater Wednesday in a Paramount production of "Niobe." The play has been prepared with great care and Miss Dawn's work finds strong support in that of Victor Moore.
Another Paramount Friday, "Help wanted," gives Lois Meredith a wide liberty for her exceptional talents. The picture goes five reels.
Monday the Wonderland has a top notch Vitagraph parody of three reels, entitled "Miss Jeckyll and Madam Hyde."
Tuesday—Last of the Elaine romances.

COLONIAL.
Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday are all dates of more than ordinary importance at the Colonial.
Lionel Barrymore and Jane Grey, one of the strongest feature teams of the screen, occupy the lead roles in "The Flaming Sword," a sea romance of five parts, showing at the Colonial Tuesday.

Wednesday brings another Fox picture, "The Family Stain," an inspiring detective story which the acting of Frederick Perry, star of "Dr. Rameau," raises a few notches above the usual detective picturization.

"The Battle of the Sexes" Thursday is a play of vital appeal to all. It is woven about the much disputed "single standard of morals" question. D. W. Griffith directed the making of this picture.

Monday the Colonial has "The Charm Against Harm," the eighteenth installment of the Diamond from The Sky features.

PALACE.
The headliner at the Palace this week will be "The Vanderhoff Affair," Thursday, starring Hal Forde, Broadway favorite, in four acts. Mr. Forde, it will be remembered, occupied the star role of Baron Charles in "Made in America" at the Winter Garden, and was prominent in the recent production of "The Purple Robe," at the Liberty Theater, New York City. He appeared at the Palace some time ago in "The Runaway Wife."

Monday—Augusta Anderson in "The Wheel of the Gods," two act Biograph.
Wednesday—"The Witness," featuring Lillie Leslie; three act Lubin.
Friday—Vitagraph three act feature, entitled "My Lost One," with an all star cast.
Saturday—"Country Blood," 3-act Lubin with Romaine Fielding.

FOR INTOXICATION
Two persons were apprehended Saturday night for having imbibed too freely of intoxicants, and were released Sunday with agreement to face Mayor Coffey Monday night. The two are Frank Fisher and Dick DeWitt.

STRUCK OASIS
William Carter, coming from the dry territory of Washington C. H., when he hit this oasis, proceeded to get stewed. He was fined the costs by the mayor, Saturday morning. Chillicothe Gazette.

The president of the Chinese republic says he would be disloyal should he refuse to head a popular revolution and wear a monarch's crown, a rich example of the accommodating subtlety in the oriental makeup.

Watchful waiting for an adequate army and navy should be the kind with a punch in it.

WHISKEY MEN
ASK CHANGE

By Associated Press.
Chicago, November 8.—Appeal for revision of the Sunday saloon closing law, giving cities home rule on the question, will be made to Governor Dunne today by the saloon interests, who yesterday held a street parade in the downtown districts as a protest against Mayor Thompson's order closing Sunday saloons in Chicago.
More than 40,000 persons, by actual count of tabulators employed by newspapers, participated in the parade.
Officials of the united societies, however, said the total number of marchers was 101,000.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Rapid Eating.
Few people really masticate their food properly or eat as slowly as they should in spite of all the advice and warnings of physicians. Still we will add one more word. Don't let the children bolt their breakfasts or any other meal for that matter. Ten per cent of the school children of America suffer from malnutrition, and malnutrition is as often due to rapid eating as to under-eating.

HER NEWEST PHOTO.

It Was Well Taken, Too, Just as She Intended It Should Be.

[A dialogue between him and her.]
"What have you got there?"
"Where?"
"In your hands behind your back."
"I'm not going to show you!"
"Ah, please do."
"Promise you won't try to take it away from me?"

He sneaks up close to the girl, who furtively holds before him a photo, which he clutches with both hands.

"That's beautiful!"
"Do you really think so?"
"Yes, pretty nice. But you are much more beautiful, you know."
"Now you're flattering me. I think I look just horrid in it."
"Oh, you don't. Aren't you going to give this one to me?"

The girl flies to the other side of the room in evident terror. The youth flies over after her and in an apparent struggle manages (quite easily) to wrench the photo from her grasp.

"Give it back to me! Please give it back," she pleads.
"Give it back? I guess not!"
"I think you're just the meanest thing!"

In a little while they quiet down, and despite the fact that she continues to coax him for the photo every few minutes he carries it away with him. She goes to bed perfectly happy, for she intended that he should have it—in fact, had it taken especially for him.—Detroit Free Press.

Adage For Adage.
"A stitch in time," you know, "saves nine."
"I said when Mabel tore her dress. 'I wish you'd mend it right away. I do dislike untidiness!'"

For several days I kept this up. But now my nagging's ended. Because she came back at me with, "Less said, the sooner mended!"
—Woman's Home Companion.

Fairly Warned.
"What's the value of that trunk?" inquired the baggage-man.
"You mean my wife's trunk over there?" asked the man, who was smoking a Pittsburgh stogie in a gold mounted meerschaum holder.

"Yes."
"Well, my private opinion is that the whole outfit ain't worth $4. But if you had ever seen my wife get really riled you wouldn't lose it for a million."
—Washington Star.

Nothing startling about that new odd stocking fad, because stockings have long been an odd sort of get up

The appeal of King George V. for volunteers to save the country is at once pathetic and suggestive. The appeal is addressed to "my subjects" for "my empire," and so on. It is a monarch's call, not a national slogan. Others have appealed in the name of the nation and of the government and failed. The king's attitude appears like a forlorn hope, a last attempt to reach the heart of Britons. Will they rally for their king? England's monarch has long been a mere figurehead, and royalty is a survival, a decaying, not a constructive, force. The people maintain it as an institution contributing to national development. Fifty years ago, when the best of the civilized world was studying republican liberty, it was said by Englishmen as well as outside observers that the monarchy would probably die with Queen Victoria. But the queen outlasted that era, and new questions made the continuance of royalty necessary for peace. The war puts a new test upon royalty and gives it a chance to make good. A charm in the voice or person of the king on the throne which the nation would heed in the hour of disaster would make him ruler in a sense unknown to Britons for two generations. Such an event might enthronify royalty above politics and write a new chapter in English history.

The report of the Carnegie peace endowment commission on the state of war in the Balkans two years ago is timely. Referring to the atrocities, of which glaring accounts were printed at the time, the commission says: "The worst atrocities were not due to the excesses of the regular soldiery. The population mutually slaughtered with a ferocity heightened by mutual knowledge and the old hatreds and resentments they cherished." There will be more lurid tales of atrocities from the near east, and it is well to be reminded that the soldiery are not the only offenders nor the worst. The brutalization of soldiers is not the main count in the indictment against war. It also brutalizes civilians, women and children among them.

Among the various motives assigned for the great war acquisition of territory and trade expansion are conspicuous if not overpowering. When the war ends there will be the same motives at work among nations which lose, for all cannot win, and they will be well organized for the new commercial struggle. In that conflict the United States dare not be neutral, and this is the time to organize the forces which will be brought into play.

As to means and methods for national defense it is pertinent to ask what has become of the system of inland waterways which experts and commissions planned out years ago. As long ago as the civil war President Lincoln recommended to congress a military canal connecting the east and the west.

When the soldiers get home from the big war will they push aside the women mechanics, mail carriers, car conductors, policemen and the like and take their old jobs back or loaf, Indian fashion, and let the "squaws" do the hard labor?

The proposed work of adding letters to our alphabet and generally reconstructing the language will afford endless amusement for all, providing the reform stops short of sending busy adults back to their spelling books.

Game protection laws work fairly well for the conservation of bird and animal life, but the hunter still has to take chances on a bullet not meant for him but a killer just the same.

The "go to the doctor week" is one way to do yeoman's work for national defense after all the fine talk about it the last few years—defense against disease and inefficiency.

Nothing startling about that new odd stocking fad, because stockings have long been an odd sort of get up

Newspaper
Advertising

Goes direct to the people and the people constitute the buying public. Newspaper advertising not only talks but it emphasizes; it has the undivided attention of the reader and covers a field no salesman can hope to reach. There are many styles in newspaper advertising and the small announcement, which costs only five cents, is just as effective in its way as the larger one, which costs proportionately more. The benefits to be derived can not be measured by the size of the ad, for the very good reason that the small, inexpensive announcement invariably proves effective. Newspaper advertising costs from five cents up to any price the advertiser desires to pay.

ANCIENT BAGDAD.

Its Ruined Mosques, Crumbling Walls and Rich Bazaars.

Squalor and ruin are the present characteristics of ancient Bagdad, the once beautiful city of "The Arabian Nights." Of its famous hundred mosques only about thirty are now in use. Several are so dilapidated that their crumbling roofs and walls threaten the lives of the devout who still worship in them.

The one splendid wall, built of the handsome Arabian brick and extending around the city a distance of five miles, still stands, but it is broken in many places. The four original gates remain, and the oldest and finest one, bearing the date of 1220, has not been opened since the middle of the seventeenth century.

The famous river Tigris, a muddy stream flowing sluggishly during the greater part of the year, divides Bagdad into two parts, which are connected by a rickety bridge of boats nearly 200 feet long. When the snow melts upon the Armenian mountains the Tigris rises, sometimes floods part of the city and often carries away the bridge.

The bazaars of Bagdad exhibit rich merchandise of many kinds, including Turkish and European products, both modern and antique, and are the most attractive part of the city.—New York Tribune.

FATE OF A PIRATE CREW.

Strange Case of the Nancy Brig and a Hungry Shark.

In the museum at Kingston, Jamaica, there are some tattered ships' papers, brown with age and salt water, and a small tin canister. These articles attest the truth of the strangest pirate story ever told.

In 1799 the crew of the Nancy brig were apparently honest traders, but did some piracy now and then on the side. One day they found it necessary to go into Kingston for supplies. Before doing so they naturally removed all traces of their buccaneering trade. Among other things they threw overboard this tin canister stuffed with papers taken from ships they had sunk, with comments written on the margin by the pirate captain.

Later in the day a British frigate was becalmed near the spot, and the sailors spent their leisure catching sharks. Presently they hauled up a big fellow, cut him open and found the tin case with the papers inside. These were taken to the captain, who, as soon as a breeze sprang up, sailed into Kingston harbor, found the Nancy brig there and had the crew tried, convicted and hanged in chains at Port Royal.

Beautiful Blue Lake.

Perhaps the most striking instance to be seen in the whole world of the wonderful apparent coloring of bodies of water is the marvelously beautiful Blue lake in Switzerland. Encompassed on all sides by lofty mountains, their lower ranges luxuriantly clothed with verdure down to the edge of the water and adorned with many fine forest trees, while their higher activities are garbed in a mantle of eternal snow, the little lake, nestling in its deep hollow basin, is quite startling in its singular and strange beauty. The water, although really pure and colorless, appears to be of a most intense sky blue. And its transparency is so remarkable that a small coin dropped into the water in the center of the lake can be seen until it reaches the bottom, apparently more than a hundred feet beneath.

Finger Nails Show Health.

Our finger nails are made of a horny material that is in some ways like the material that makes our skin. But it is more like the material that makes our hair. It is after all different from either of these and is more like horn than any other part of our bodies. The special cells at the base of the nails form the material for our nails and therefore the health of our finger nails depends on these cells. If you are not in good health or if you do not take good care of your skin your finger nails will show that they are not healthy. If your blood is out of order the cells that make the finger nails will not do their work properly and then little white spots will appear on the nails. So you see those little white spots are a sign of bad health.—Kansas City Star.

Could Lift a Ton and a Half.

A Scotchman, said to be the last of the Stuarts, was possessed with an extraordinary strength, from which circumstance he got the byname of Jemmy Strength. Among other feats, he could carry a twenty-four pounder cannon and had been known to lift a cartload of hay weighing a ton and a half upon his back. Many a time he took up a jackass and, carrying it on his shoulders, walked through the tollgate.

Germans Take Krusevac, Ninety Miles South of Danube—French and Montenegrin Forces Winning—Roumania to Remain Neutral—Russians Launch Great Offensive on Riga-Dvinsk Front and Germans Claim Russ Losses Are Heavy.

By Associated Press.
Berlin, via London, November 8.—The Serbian town of Krusevac, on the railroad about 50 miles northwest of Nish, has been occupied by German troops, according to today's official statement given out by army headquarters staff.

With the fall of Krusevac, what is said to be the only arsenal left the Serbians passed into hostile hands.

It also marks a southerly march of nearly 90 miles into the interior of Serbia by Teutonic forces.

London, November 8.—The French are continuing to press their advance into Bulgaria northeast of Strumitsa, a British contingent aiding them, a Saloniki dispatch states.

But difficulties of the terrain make the progress slow.

Likewise Paris advices declare the French forces are following up their successes north of Prilip, where a junction with the Serbians on the Babuna range is said to be imminent.

On the extreme west of the Balkan front the Montenegrins claim to be holding the Austrians near Grahovo, inflicting severe losses upon them in desperate battles.

The intention of Roumania to remain neutral, at least for the present, is emphasized in dispatches from Bucharest.

British submarines have recently been active in the Baltic, and the Undine was doubtless the victim of one of these British undersea craft.

Nearly all the crew of the cruiser, which had a complement of 275 men, was saved.

POINTS TO THE SCRIPTURE AS HIS SUPPORT

By Associated Press.
Washington, November 8.—President Wilson finds support in the scriptures for his policy of national defense and in a letter to Seth Low, who wrote the president commending his Manhattan Club speech, quotes verses from the thirty-third chapter of Ezekiel.

The letter, made public at the White House, the president said:

"I am particularly gratified that you should so fully concur in the position I took in my speech to the Manhattan Club.

"There is a quotation from Ezekiel which I have had very much in mind recently in connection with these important matters."

The president then quotes the second, third, fourth, fifth and sixth verses of Chapter 33.

WHITLOCK HAS CLEAN RECORD

By Associated Press.
Washington, November 8.—Secretary Lansing announced today that the German military authorities in Belgium have expressed to American Minister Brand Whitlock their regrets that published reports should have made it appear that he was leaving Belgium as a result of objections from the German government.

Minister Whitlock was assured that the German authorities regretted his departure.

Secretary Lansing added that no official communication of any sort had passed between the Berlin and Washington governments respecting Mr. Whitlock's status.

Mr. Whitlock will sail from Amsterdam on Wednesday of this week, for a vacation due to ill health.

Mr. Whitlock said his departure from Belgium was in no way connected with his efforts to delay the execution of Miss Edith Cavell or with any political question.

EXPECT BURTON TO ENTER RING

Former United States Senator Theodore E. Burton May Announce Candidacy for Presidency This Evening—Confers With Many Party Leaders in Columbus Today—Willis Announcement Paves Way for Burton.

By Associated Press.
Columbus, November 8.—Announcement of former Senator Theodore E. Burton's candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination was looked for here today by his friends, following a series of in-the political situation in Ohio.

These conferences included Senator Warren G. Harding, Chairman Edward Jones of the State Executive Committee, Chairman W. L. Parmenter of the State Central Committee, Former Congressman Ralph D. Cole, Lieutenant Governor John H. Arnold, Public Utilities Commissioner Lawrence K. Langdon and Budget Commissioner E. M. Fullington.

Efforts were made at these conferences, it was said, to find a candidate for the United States senatorial nomination to succeed Senator Pomeroy next year, who can receive the united support of Republican leaders.

Political observers pointed out as significant the fact that Charles F. Dick of Akron, an avowed candidate for the senatorial nomination, was not expected here today.

formal conferences which he held with Republican state leaders.

Governor Willis' statement, made last night, that he would not seek presidential honors but would be a candidate for re-election as governor gave a big impetus to Mr. Burton's decision, those associated with him said.

Following a conference with Governor Willis in the governor's private office for more than an hour this morning, Mr. Burton made engagements to talk with half a dozen Republican leaders later in the day, for the purpose of smoothing out

REFUSES TO SUPPORT PLAN

By Associated Press.
Washington, November 8.—Representative Claude Kitchin, Democratic leader of the House, told President Wilson today, after a long conference with him, that he could not support the administration's program for national defense and that he would oppose the program in a personal capacity only and not as majority leader.

Mr. Wilson outlined the army and navy plans for the next session of Congress and for the next five years and sought to influence the majority leader to be in harmony with them.

Mr. Kitchin stated his views frankly to the president, directing his opposition chiefly to the naval program.

BRITISH ARE SURPRISED

By Associated Press.
London, November 8.—Notwithstanding the forecasts of the American note to Great Britain, which had been sent from Washington by correspondents of the British press, surprise is the predominant tone of the majority of the British newspapers in their comment on the document.

The country has been too deeply wrapped up in the consideration of pressing European problems during the past few weeks to give much attention to American opinion, and apparently it is now aware that the treatment of American shipping might furnish ground for a serious controversy between the two governments.

Willis Will Again Seek the Governorship.

ISSUES TERSE STATEMENT

Feels That, in the Interest of Party Harmony, He Should Not Become an Active Candidate For the Presidential Nomination at This Time. Says Many Republicans in Ohio Worthy of Support For Presidency.

Columbus, Nov. 8.—Governor Willis will seek renomination as a candidate for governor of Ohio. The governor announces his intention in a formal statement, in which he says:

"During the past few months many of my friends in Ohio and outside of Ohio have urged me to become a candidate for the Republican nomination for the presidency in 1916. This generous attitude on their part has received much friendly mention through the columns of the press. For all these expressions of confidence I am profoundly grateful. The office of president of the United States is of such high character that one can scarcely with propriety be an avowed candidate for it as he might for another office of lesser dignity; neither could he well decline nomination if it came to him under circumstances personally and politically honorable.

"Appreciative as I am in the fullest degree of the generous and enthusiastic support proffered by my friends, especially in Ohio and throughout the west and northwest, yet I am firm in the belief that in the selection of candidates party unity and party welfare should have the first consideration. To accomplish this, it is desirable that contests within the party be so far as possible eliminated; personal ambitions and petty disappointments should be sunk for party welfare and public good.

"Personally, I am willing to make any reasonable sacrifice to promote the welfare of the party that has honored me and in whose principles I believe. Not unmindful of the loyalty of the host of friends in Ohio and elsewhere who have urged me to become an active candidate for the presidency, I nevertheless am of the opinion that such action on my part at this time would not promote harmony in the party in Ohio, no matter what the outcome of the contest might be. I have, therefore, decided to be a candidate for renomination for the office of governor of Ohio.

"In the nine months that the Republican party has been in power in Ohio there has been more of accomplishment for the interests of the people than has ever been seen before in a similar period; vast and intricate political machines, cunningly constructed by the preceding state administration, have been pounded to fragments and thrown upon the junk pile; new constructive laws have been passed restoring government to the people and protecting the public against the peril of political autocracy.

racy, yet the work is not quite finished, and I am willing to aid in completing the job undertaken by the Republican party in Ohio. Having put our hand to the plow, we will plow on to the end of the furrow and see that all noxious weeds are turned under as we go.

"Having decided in the interest of party harmony to ask a renomination as governor, I urge all Ohio Republicans in the same spirit to put forth every effort to promote unity in the party. There are many eminent Republicans in Ohio worthy of the party's support for the presidency; let us unite on one of them and present him to the nation as our candidate; let us unite in upholding the work of the Republican party in Ohio and go into the campaign of 1916 to win in state and nation."

Burton in Columbus.
Columbus, Nov. 8.—Former United States Senator Burton arrived in this city for a conference with Governor Willis. It is likely that Senator Harding will meet with them. Mr. Burton declined to comment on Governor Willis' statement.

CANINES DESTROY MILLIONS

Columbus, Nov. 8.—That dogs are the greatest menace to the sheep industry of Ohio is borne out in figures that have been prepared from reports to the state auditor. In 1863 there were 7,683,854 sheep, while at this time there are only 1,627,903, and the number is decreasing constantly in spite of the fact that, with the present high prices for both wool and sheep, the business pays better than at any time since the civil war period. In many sections of the state, it is declared, sheep raising is made impossible by the dog menace. It is calculated that the state is losing not less than $10,000,000 yearly from this cause. Large payments by a majority of the counties for anti-hydrophobia treatment are taken to show that the dog is a serious menace to life. Curs from the cities are said to be largely responsible.

OHIO WET BY 54,000

Columbus, Nov. 8.—That the prohibition amendment was defeated by a majority of about 54,000 was the statement issued by Chief Statistician S. M. Johnson of the secretary of state's office. His calculation was based upon official returns from seventy-one counties and unofficial returns from the remaining seventeen counties.

PAINTERS IDLE

Cincinnati, Nov. 8.—More than 600 union painters were locked out by their employers here, following the refusal of a number of painters to work on jobs on which nonunion glaziers were employed.

CAROTHERS IS IN BAD ODOR

Washington, Nov. 8.—Secretary Lansing has not been advised of reports from the border that General Obregon has protested against the presence in Mexico of George C. Carothers, who for nearly two years has been the United States' special representative for communication with Villa. Since the Villa-Carranza fight the Carranzistas have been bitter against Carothers, and some of the Carranza agents in this country have denounced him as a trouble-maker in Mexico. Carothers is not now in Mexico, having gone to Douglas, Ariz., in connection with the situation which arose at the border town at the time of Villa's attack upon Agua Prieta. Whether he will return to Mexico has not been officially stated. The administration has not sought in recent weeks to have him remain close to Villa.

HURST LANDS APPOINTMENT

Columbus, Nov. 8.—J. Edward Hurst of New Philadelphia was appointed a member of the state liquor license commission by Governor Willis to succeed Byron M. Clendenning, Democrat, of Cincinnati, whom the governor removed two weeks ago for having participated in the referendum on the McDermott bill. Hurst formerly was a member of the Ohio senate and is editor of the New Philadelphia Times. He is a dry advocate and accompanied William J. Bryan on his recent prohibition tour through the state. The continuity of Hurst's position is contingent upon the decision of the supreme court in Clendenning's appeal from the action of the governor in ousting him.

PROTEST AGAINST RACIAL SUICIDE

Montclair, N. J., Nov. 8.—One thousand women, each with a baby in arms or leading a small child, attended a service in the Immaculate Conception church. The assemblage was intended as a protest against "race suicide." The service was one of a series marking the close of a two weeks' mission conducted by Jesuit priests.

RAIN FROM A CLEAR SKY.

An Alleged Phenomenon Linked With the Failing of Dew.

In English dictionaries we find the word seren defined as a fine rain which sometimes falls from a clear sky shortly after sunset. The word is French, but has become the international designation in meteorological works for this alleged phenomenon, which is always described as quite rare.

Has the phenomenon a real existence?

The fact that a stereotyped description of it has been passed on from one meteorological writer to another since the latter part of the eighteenth century is by no means conclusive evidence on this point, for science has perpetuated many myths by the process of reiteration.

Professor Gustav Hellmann, in a recent publication of the Russian Meteorological institute, sees in the conception of the seren merely the survival of the old fashioned belief that evening dew falls from the (clear) sky, and he finds that the seren of early French writers was identical with that "evening dampness" which was supposed to be injurious to human health.

It still remains possible that rain may sometimes fall from a clear sky, though this is not likely to be a phenomenon peculiar to the early evening. Some cases can be explained as due to the oblique falling of raindrops, carried horizontally by the wind, when the clouds from which they came have passed away.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

AMERICANS ANXIOUSLY AWAITING

ENGLAND'S REPLY TO AMERICAN NOTE

Not Believed at Washington That London Will Yield.

Washington, Nov. 8.—Increased irritation in this country against Great Britain, particularly among business interests, is expected to be the chief and immediate effect of the American note protesting against British interference with neutral trade.

There is little or no expectation here that Great Britain will yield in response to the latest American note or other notes which may be written. It is believed rather that the British are determined to pursue their present course to the end of the war unless circumstances make it convenient for them to relax existing measures. Great Britain already has replied to the majority of the American complaints, contending there is ample legal justification for all she is doing. She already has indicated that she expects ultimate settlement in an arbitration tribunal. She has a general arbitration treaty with the United States, and this government is also bound by the so called Bryan peace treaty to submit to an impartial investigation any matter of dispute between the two governments.

It is admitted in official quarters that the administration has no answer ready to questions as to what it will do to back up its note. It is said the administration has no thought, however, of invoking force against the British.

Everybody's happy with an Estate Oak in the household; seems as though this stove has a way all its own of making firm friends of the family.

"Tickles" "Pa", too, 'cause it has such a small appetite; once or twice a day is often enough to feed it, and soft coal is its favorite food. "Of course Willie's strong for it. The Estate Oak saves him a good many trips to the coal bin, and a whole lot of luggin' ashes, too.

Fact of the matter is, an

Speaking of Roads

Each day the number of men who fear that the present plan of "good road" building is not going to prove equal to the demand for better highways, is steadily increased.

At the same time the number of thinking men who favor a lower first cost and more time, money and energy in keeping the roads in repair is growing larger every day.

The enormous first cost of the brick roads and the inability of the brick plants to keep pace with the present demand for their product make the only really good permanent road almost impossible so far as any great extent of mileage is concerned.

At the present rate of building brick roads the present generation will have passed away before any very considerable portion of Fayette's hundreds of miles of roads are paved.

It is now generally conceded that the costly macadam road will not last without constant repair and that a considerably less amount of money than that expended in repair on the costly road would keep in excellent shape the much less expensive road.

One of our influential citizens, a close observer of all matters of public interest, makes the assertion that the interest alone on the first cost of one of the expensive roads, either brick or macadam would keep a road of comparatively modest first cost in excellent condition all the time.

While all the costly and tedious plans are being tried out it might result in a great deal of good in the years to come and great saving certainly of the people's money to try out the plan of building a road, at moderate first cost, of good material and provide for its repair.

Certainly it would do no harm to try out the less expensive plan and their are some mighty "hard headed" citizens who sincerely believe that the solution of our present problem will then be found.

A Surprising Result

Anyone who entertains any doubt that the people these days are voting as they please, regardless of party, that they refuse to allow anyone to do their thinking for them and that they make up their own minds need only to look at the result of the vote last Tuesday on the proposal to amend the constitution of the state so as to extend the term of county officials.

The result of that vote will be sufficient evidence to dispel any lingering doubt on those matters.

Not one of the four proposed amendments submitted to the voters had as little said in opposition to it—in fact no one was openly and loudly opposing its adoption. No amendment proposal had more work done in its support and more outspoken advocacy save possibly only the proposed state wide prohibition amendment.

In every county of the state every county official, practically, was openly supporting the proposal and laboring earnestly for its adoption. The press was either advising the adoption of the amendment or keeping silent if opposed.

And what happened?

That proposal was literally buried under an avalanche of hostile votes.

While the other proposals were defeated by from twenty to fifty thousand votes, that particular one was defeated by nearly three hundred and fifty thousand.

Who says the people don't know what they want?

Isn't it a mistake in view of that result to assert that the people can be led astray on those proposals? If the people can be led in these matters against their desires it looks very much like the leader hasn't yet been found.

An Official's Private Life

Unfortunately there are still a few officials, appointive and elective, in the public service who do not realize that a part of their duties as officials is to maintain a proper standard of living in private life.

Every day the number of officials who fail to realize this important part of their duties, is growing smaller.

The younger generation, very properly, regard men who are chosen by popular vote or by the appointing power, as men fit to enter the public service, as men whose private as well as official conduct is above reproach.

Public officials are, in a measure, examples to the younger generations whether they will it so or not and the men who are laboring under the mistake that selection to the public service warrants them in letting down the bars of morals in their private life, are not only doing themselves an injustice but they are destroying some of the highest and most valuable ideals of the oncoming generations.

The people both old and young should have respect for their public servants. That they cannot have if the private life of the public servants is not what it should be, even though there may be no just cause for complaint as to official conduct.

However, in these days, there is grave danger that an official who is below par in his private life is not up to standard officially, and if he is for a time that, sooner or later, the official standard will fall to the lower level.

BEAUTIFUL WEATHER.

Beautiful weather in town today;
"Beautiful weather!" you hear them say.

Beautiful weather somewhere, my dear,
Even when shadows are hanging here;
Sunshine and singing most all the time
Somewhere, darling, in some sweet clime.

Beautiful weather, with skies above
Clear as a bell when the heart's in love
With duty and kindness and keeping on
With the old vocations from dawn to dawn;
Beautiful weather in street and lane
When the spirit is mounting on love's refrain.

Beautiful weather in field and mart
When beautiful weather is in the heart,
And birds are singing and all the room
Of life is fragrant with rare perfume
And musk of honey and dew of dream,
When love smiles down with its golden beam.

Beautiful weather! 'Tis always so
When hearts are contented with all they know
Of peace and gladness, and spend their day
Making life beautiful all the way
With singing and sunshine and rest from strife,
Just to make beautiful weather of life.

MAKE EXERCISE PLAY.

To Get the Best Results It Must Be Thoroughly Enjoyed.

When you exercise, play. That is one of the points most strongly urged to the attention of the public in recently published public health reports.

No matter whether you are walking, gardening, exercising in a gymnasium or playing golf, keep your exercise free from the spirit of drudgery and make it all recreation. Make it as enjoyable as anything you may do throughout the entire day. If you don't much of the good that it might do you are lost. "The very best thing a man can do," says the report, "is to make a hobby of his exercise. No matter how poor the hobby, if it induces outdoor exercise it is perfectly justifiable."

The woman who is obliged to take her baby out for a two hours' airing every day is far more fortunate than she often realizes.

The only advice the report offers the man who is going to take up a hobby for the benefit of the resulting exercise is to choose one that permits of its being followed the year round rather than one that depends upon seasons of the year. For that reason the amateur gardener or chicken fancier is far more fortunate in his choice than the amateur geologist, botanist or ornithologist. The latter must wait on the seasons and must find favorable locations for indulging their hobbies, while the former have year round pastimes.

OUR MISNAMED RUINS.

The Mesa Verde Cliff Dwellings Are Really Complete Towns.

Many visitors to the prehistoric cliff dwellings of the Mesa Verde National park, in southwestern Colorado, says a government publication, are astonished to find that what is commonly described as a dwelling is not properly a dwelling at all, but a village or city.

The celebrated Cliff Palace is not a palace. Neither is Spruce Tree House a house, nor Balcony House a house. Each of these is a complete town which once, in the dim ages before the earliest Indian tradition, was an organized community, often of considerable size.

The arrangement of houses in a cliff dwelling of the size of Cliff Palace, for example, is characteristic and intimately associated with the distribution of the social divisions of the inhabitants. The population was composed of a number of units, possibly clans, each of which had its own social organization more or less distinct from others, a condition that appears in the arrangement of rooms. The rooms occupied by a clan were not necessarily connected, although generally neighboring rooms were distinguished from one another by their uses.

In a Maori Wooing House.

Among the Maoris sometimes in the white matoro (the wooing house), a building in which the young of both sexes assembled for play, songs, dances, etc., there would be at stated times a meeting. When the fires burned low a girl would stand up in the dark and say: "I love So-and-so. I want him for my husband." If he coughed (sign of assent) or said "Yes" it was well; if only dead silence she covered her head with her robe and was ashamed. This was not often, as she generally had managed to ascertain, either by her own inquiry or by sending a girl friend, if the proposal was acceptable. On the other hand, sometimes a mother would attend and say, "I want So-and-so for my son." If not acceptable there was generally mocking, and she was told to let the young people have their house (the wooing house) to themselves.

His Master Stroke.

"George Ferguson," said his wife, looking with crushing scorn at the gaudy rug he had bought at a special sale, "I wonder if ever in your life you knew a bargain when you saw it?"

The case was critical. Mr. Ferguson saw that something bold and decisive must be done, and his mind worked quickly.

"Why, yes, Laura," he said. "When I wanted a wife I picked out the nicest, sweetest little woman in the whole world, and I got the best bargain any man ever got. There, there, pet!"—Chicago Tribune.

Life is short. Let us not throw away it away in useless resentment.

TWO-MILL LEVY BECOMES EFFECTIVE IN DECEMBER

First Installment of Two-Mill Road Levy, Voted at Recent Election Will Be Available for Use in February of Coming Year - County to Have More Than Half Million for Good Roads During Coming Five Years.

The first installment of the two-mill levy for road improvement in Fayette county will be certified to County Treasurer Duff for the coming December collection of taxes and as a result the first installment, amounting to about $40,000 will be distributed to the various taxing districts in February and the work of improving the roads in the various districts can be started early next spring.

In making the certification to County Treasurer Duff, County Auditor Pine is acting under a ruling received on the question of when the first installment of the two-mill levy would be collected.

The two-mill levy will continue in force for five years, and in that time the county will probably have more than a half million dollars available for road building, and the result, if the money is expended judiciously, will be that Fayette county will have roads equal to those of any county in the state. The original cost of Fayette's highways was $880,000, and this amount was paid long ago.

The county budget carries a .69 mill levy for road repair and the levy will bring in approximately $27,600 for the fiscal year ending September 1, 1916.

The second installment of the two-mill levy will be collected next June and distributed about August first, so that next year alone Fayette county, outside of the State Aid fund which this year was thousands of dollars and which will be greater next year, will have $80,000 available for road building under the two-mill levy, and an additional $27,600 for repairing roads as usual. With the state aid fund the amount will total between $125,000 and $150,000 for the coming year.

As a result of the first installment being collected at the coming semi-annual collection of taxes, the work of both the County Auditor and County Treasurer will be doubled for the next few weeks.

FRIEND OF LOCAL MAN HONORED IN JAPAN

Mr. Almer Hegler is in receipt of a copy of "The Japanese Times," published in Tokyo, October 5th, containing an interesting account of a Bible graciously accepted by the Emperor of Japan as a coronation gift and presented by Dr. E. A. Sturge, a personal friend of Mr. Hegler.

The paper reports that speaking of the object of his mission Dr. Sturge said that when asked by the Christian Japanese of America to come to Japan to present their Bible to the Emperor he could not refuse the great honor.

The Emperor expressed satisfaction both with the gift and an accompanying poem, composed by Dr. Sturge.

A reception and dinner which was pronounced one of the most numerous attended and representative gatherings which Tokyo has had for years, was tendered to Dr. Sturge at the Imperial Hotel.

A couple of months ago Mr. and Mrs. Hegler received a postal from Dr. Sturge saying, "I am off for Japan in a rather small ship. If I go down like Sub. F-4 remember me 4-F-er-more.—E. A. Sturge."

Consequently Mr. and Mrs. Hegler have awaited further word concerning Dr. Sturge's safe arrival and the success of his project with much interest.

YOUNG SEALS NOW PLENTY.

The Protective Law of 1912 Has Done More Than Was Expected.

That the fur seals of the Pribilof islands have so increased since the passage of the protective law of 1912 that the resumption of limited commercial sealing is advisable for the welfare of the seal herds is the conclusion of the special commission sent to the islands last summer by the bureau of fisheries of the department of commerce.

The law of 1912 provided that the killing of all seals, with the exception of a few needed by the natives of these northern islands, should be stopped for five years and that 5,000 three-year-old males should be maintained as an annual breeding reserve during the life of the treaty suspending pelagic sealing which was concluded by the United States, Russia, Japan and Great Britain in 1911.

The commission finds that the law of 1912 has fully done what was expected of it, the annual herd of pups during 1914 being almost twice as large as it was in 1909. The commission has reached the conclusion that there is a considerable overstock of male seals and that "this constitutes the principal undesirable feature of the herd as found in 1914. The welfare of the herd demands that some of them should be killed in 1915."

This year there are available to be killed 31,751 males, from whose skins the government could get a revenue amounting to $932,745, whereas the continued suspension of sealing will bring about a useless and even harmful excess of males and a minimum loss in skins of $2,700,000 to be divided among the nations involved.—Outlook.

Making Coffins of Glass.

Made of two pieces, which are bound together by heavy metal bands, a glass casket has been invented which will soon be introduced for burial purposes. This serves both as a coffin and vault, as it requires no protection against the chemical action of the earth. When closed it is hermetically sealed and is proof against both air and water. The two sections are molded in heavy glass, which gives the casket great strength. Its general form is the same practically as that of other burial receptacles. The chief point advanced in its favor is its obvious qualities of durability.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Green Proper Color For Freshmen.

"Resolved, That green is the proper color with which to adorn the members of the freshmen class of Hamline university.

"Resolved further, That since heads are the most conspicuous portion of the anatomy of said persons green caps shall cover the domes of all freshmen hereafter and that the caps be decorated with a button."

This, in effect, is a resolution passed recently by the student council of Hamline university.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Wild Buffalo Increasing.

Government authorities of Alberta, Canada, have made as reliable a census as possible of the wild buffalo of the province and announce that the number is not less than 400, probably nearer 500. The greater portion of these range in northern Alberta and the remainder in the Mackenzie district. Hunting, of course, is prohibited. The Royal northwest mounted police have the animals under their protection, and any infraction of the law protecting them is severely punished.

Artificial Coffee.

A young Japanese in Hyogo is reported to have invented artificial coffee almost equal in every respect to natural Brazilian coffee. As the result of chemical analysis by experts it is said that the goods now manufactured by the young inventor are more wholesome than the natural bean, while retaining all its flavor and quality.

Fun For the Tar.

A New Jersey hen springing a barrel of fine, soft tar, alighted thereon and laid an egg. There resulted a firmly bound sandwich, tar, egg and chicken in the order named. A woman and a man, who went to the rescue, were also held fast by the hands until the police were called and effected a rescue.—Exchange.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Hard Wax In the Ears.

Impacted cerumen in the ears interferes with hearing. Some cases of deafness are due wholly to the external auditory canal being filled up with hardened cerumen, and after this has been removed the hearing is restored. Where it is not convenient or possible to call upon a physician to have the wax taken out of the canal some one at home may give the necessary treatment, which is quite simple. Buy an ounce of glycerin and a medicine dropper. At bedtime drop five drops of the glycerin in the ear when lying down, with the affected ear uppermost. After dropping in the glycerin lie still in the same position for ten minutes. Then treat the other ear in the same manner if it needs attention. Continue this treatment for three consecutive nights. The morning of the fourth day syringe out the affected ear or ears (use a soft rubber ear syringe) with warm water, a tablespoonful of which one teaspoonful of phenol sodique has been stirred. This will bring away the wax, which has been softened and dislodged by the glycerin applications.

WORK IS RESUMED ON THE NEW UNION STATION

Work on Washington's splendid new Union Station was resumed Monday morning, when the contractor, with a gang of men, resumed the work of excavating for the concrete foundation and basement rooms.

It is the intention of the contractor to rush the work upon the building, employing as large a force of men as he can wield to advantage and completing the station at the earliest possible moment, which will probably be sometime after the first of the coming year.

Had work not been halted the building would have been finished sometime in December, as provided for in the contract, it is announced.

In addition to work opening on the new station, Service Director

Gerstner early Monday morning started the work of making the fill on Water street from Temple to Paint street, and P. J. Burke will immediately move the old "Farmer's Hotel" back to his new property line.

The earth for filling in Water street is being removed from the Hillery land south of Temple street and back of the Ice Factory, where the channel of Paint creek will be straightened.

With proper weather the street will be filled in and opened to traffic before the first of the coming month and Paint street will then be completely closed. Until the new "missing link" is opened, Paint street will be open sufficiently to pass the new union station site.

LIFE-SAVING DEVICE INSTALLED IN THIS CITY

Dr. G. S. Hodson has installed in his hospital a "Lung Motor," one of the great life-saving devices which has been able to accomplish wonderful results as a mechanical respirator.

While Dr. Hodson has purchased the lung motor especially for the hospital use it will be always at the disposal of any emergency case.

It is claimed the lung motor has a big advantage over the pulmonary in its construction and can be used any time or place without necessitating a compressed air tank.

It is especially valuable in being able to resuscitate from drowning, fumes from gas, electrical shocks, hospital cases and asphyxia neonatorum, and in many cities the Board of Public Safety has purchased a Lung Motor for the use of city hospitals and as a matter of general protection to the public.

SABINA WOMAN MAKES COMPLAINT

A woman of Sabina appealed to Mayor Coffey, Sunday evening, to locate her husband and two other men of Sabina, whom she declared had come to this city to meet certain girls in this city.

The Mayor was informed that the three men had come to this city in a buggy. A search was made for them, but they could not be located. However the police will watch for the trio in the future, and if caught will give each the limit. The men are said to be well known married men of Sabina.

AGED GRANDMOTHER

So Weak She Could Hardly Stand—Made Strong by Vinol.

Right here in Washington Court House we have seen such excellent results from Vinol that it is a pleasure to know it is doing so much good for old people in other parts of the country.

Woodbridge, N. J.—"My Grandma was recovering from the grippe and was so weak she could hardly stand, and as she keeps house for my father and myself, she could not get around at all. She had taken cod liver oil and many other medicines, but nothing seemed to do her any good. At last we heard of Vinol and tried it, and Grandma commenced to feel better right away, and got strong very soon, so she gets around as well as ever. We all praise Vinol for it is a splendid medicine." Myrtle H. Bunn.

The reason Vinol is so successful in restoring strength to the aged is because of the rare combination of tonic iron, the curative medicinal extractives of fresh cods' livers, beef peptone and mild native wine. It supplies iron to the blood, quickens the appetite, aids digestion, promotes proper assimilation of food, and enriches the blood, and brings back the strength of renewed health. Golf's Hardest Shots.

"I have heard many debates as to the hardest and the easiest clubs to play," says Jerome D. Travers, the famous golfer, in the American Magazine. "I should say the hardest shot in the game, the one that has fewer masters, is the full iron shot to the green. Running a close second is the mashie pitch. There are fewer golfers by far who can play these two shots well than those who are good drivers or good putters. The easiest shot in golf is the drive, and the simplest is the putt. But as putting is almost purely a mental proposition it probably varies more with all players than any other shot."

"You see very few good sound iron players, especially among the amateurs in America. In England their iron play is much better."

Man's Will is All His Own.

True education lies in learning to wish things to be as they actually are. It lies in learning to distinguish what is our own from what does not belong to us. But there is only one thing which is fully our own—that is our will or purpose. God, acting as a good king and a true father, has given us a will which cannot be restrained, compelled or thwarted. He has put it wholly in our power. * * * Nothing can ever force us to act against our will. If we are conquered it is because we have willed to be conquered.—Epictetus.

BIG DRIVE FOR 200 MEMBERS IS NEAR AT HAND

The drive for 200 new members for the Young Men's Christian Association, undertaken by the Dutch Treat Club, is to be launched early Tuesday morning, and when the smoke of battle lifts it is expected that the club will report the entire 200 members.

Those who take part in the "drive" are firm in the determination to make it a success.

The various teams meet tonight at six o'clock to perfect final plans for the work.

The workers will meet again tomorrow night to make reports.

POOL ROOM RAIDED BY MAYOR AND BELL

Mayor Coffey and Patrolman Bell made an unheralded visit, about eleven o'clock Saturday night, to the Elder pool room conducted in the basement immediately back of the Bryant Barber Shop on East Court street, and for a short time a lively scene ensued and there was a general scramble to get out of the place.

Mayor Coffey suspected that gambling was in progress, but found only a few cards. In attempting to take the crowd of some 25 to the mayor's office, many broke away and fled, making their escape, but, according to the police, many of their names have been obtained and charges will, in all probability, be filed within a short time.

Of those taken in charge by the police, Elder made arrangements for their appearance when the Mayor calls.

Late Monday afternoon no charges had been filed against any of those who were present at the time the raid was made.

CONNECTING LINK NOW BEING MADE

The work of improving that part of the Bloomingburg and Midway pike from the southern corner of the Bloomingburg school grounds to the intersection of the Danville pike and, incidentally, to the intersection of the paved roadway north of Bloomingburg, is now nearing completion, and by the end of this week the roadway will have been rebuilt of crushed stone and thoroughly rolled.

At the present time all of the stone is in place, the grading has all been done, much of the rolling has been finished, and the remaining work will be completed by rolling and the application of a top dressing of screenings, which will make the quarter of a mile of roadway equal to any macadam road in the county.

The section of road forms the connecting link between the splendidly improved Devalon road and the paved section of the Bloomingburg and Midway pike.

SALE WELL PATRONIZED

Mrs. Fritz Meiers and Mrs. A. Barney assisted the young people. The soup sale is new and will probably be a permanent thing.

LARGE CONCOURSE AT DE WEESE FUNERAL

The DeWees home on Cherry street was filled with friends and many were unable to gain entrance, Saturday afternoon at half past two o'clock, when Rev. A. W. West conducted a simple, but beautiful service over all that was mortal of Mr. T. C. DeWees.

The gathering was one which gave evidence of the high esteem in which Mr. DeWees had been held and expressed the sorrow attendant upon his loss.

Rev. West supplemented the memoir with an appreciative talk, and read the hymns. A profusion of beautiful flowers surrounded the quiet sleeper, offering the sympathy of many friends.

A large number accompanied the family to the cemetery for the burial. The pallbearers were Messrs Howard McLean, Joe Gillespie, Herbert Campbell, Delbert Hays, George Perry, Al Thornton.

Mr. Jack Bishop suffered a serious fracture of the right leg, just above the ankle, Saturday about 7:15 o'clock, when the Howard Harley automobile struck him as he was in the act of crossing the intersection of Main and East streets.

Mr. Bishop was knocked down and the front part of the auto passed over his legs, causing the fracture as above stated, and painfully bruising the left leg.

Mr. Bishop was given prompt medical and surgical attention and removed to his home, where he is resting fairly easy. It will probably be three or four months before the fracture is fully healed.

Frederick the Great Proved It to His Cavalry Officers.

"Gentlemen," said Frederick the Great after a review of his troops, "I am entirely dissatisfied with the cavalry. The regiments are completely out of hand. There is no accuracy, no order. The men ride like tailors. I beg that this may not occur again and that each of you will pay more attention to his duty, but I know how things go on. You think I am not up to your dodges, but I know them all and will recapitulate them."

"When the season for riding drill comes on the captain sends for the sergeant major and says: 'I have an appointment this morning at —. Tell the first lieutenant to take the rides.' So the sergeant major goes to the senior subaltern and gives him the message, and the latter says: 'What! The captain will be away? Then I am off hunting. Tell the second lieutenant to take the men.' And the second lieutenant, who is probably still in bed, says: 'What, both of them away? Then I will stay where I am. I was up till 3 this morning at a dance. Tell the cornet I am ill and he must take the rides.' Finally the cornet remarks: 'Look here, sergeant major, what is the good of my standing out there in the cold? You know all about it much better than I do. You go and take them.'

"And so it goes, and what must be the end of it all? What can I hope to do with such cavalry before the enemy?" — "History of Frederick the Great."

One day when Mr. Clark dropped in at the museum, as was his custom, Mr. Barnum, apparently much excited, hurried his friend into the private office and said: "Gaylord, I was about to send for you. I want your advice. I have a chance to purchase the most wonderful of all zoological freaks. It's at first a perfect fish, then it changes to a four-legged land animal, then it climbs trees and —"

"Bail! You're joking," interjected Mr. Clark.

"On my honor I am not," impressively replied the showman. "But the expense!"

"Oh, hang the expense!" interrupted Mr. Clark, brimful of enthusiasm over the business project of his friend. "If"

British Position Is Vigorously Attacked

Note Holds Blockade Ineffective.

WILSON PRESENTS CASE

Says United States Can Not Submit to British Course.

CHAMPIONS NEUTRAL RIGHTS

Latest American Communication to London Insists That Great Britain Be Governed by International Law. Strong Protest Made Against British Interference With American Trade—Outstanding Features of the Note.

Washington, Nov. 8.—The American government, in its latest note to Great Britain, made public here, covering exhaustively British interference with American trade since the beginning of the European war, declares that the so called blockade instituted by the allies against enemy countries on March 11 is "ineffective, illegal and indefensible."

In the note the United States serves notice on Great Britain as follows:

1. That it does not recognize as legal and effective the British blockade of Germany and Austria-Hungary.

2. That it "can not submit" to curtailment of its neutral rights by measures which are "admittedly retaliatory and therefore illegal."

3. That it "must insist" that the relations between it and the British government be governed not by a policy of expediency but by established rules of international law.

4. That it unhesitatingly assumes the task of championing the integrity of neutral rights and will devote its energies to that end.

The note as a whole is a vigorous denunciation of the British government for the illegality of its measures in regard to neutral shipping. "Without justification," "ineffective," "illegal," "indefensible" and in violation of the law of nations," are some of this government's characterizations of the British practices.

In this note the United States accepts even more frankly than in the controversy with Germany the role of champion of neutral rights in the present war. Secretary Lansing says:

"It is of the highest importance to neutrals, not only of the present day but of the future, that the principles of international right be maintained unimpaired. This task of championing the integrity of neutral rights which have received the sanction of the civilized world against the lawless conduct of belligerents arising out of the great conflict which is now warring the countries of Europe, the United States unhesitatingly assumes and to the accomplishment of that task it will devote its energies, exercising always that impartiality which from the outbreak of the war it has sought to exercise in its relations with the warring nations."

Strongest Point in Note.

The British government is summoned to obedience of international law in the sentence, regarded here as the strongest in the note: "The government of the United States desires to impress most earnestly upon his majesty's government that it must insist that the relations between it and his majesty's government be governed not by a policy of expediency but by those established rules of international conduct upon which Great Britain, in the past, has held the United States to account when the latter nation was a belligerent engaged in a struggle for national existence."

The note contains more than 10,000 words. It includes among other exhibits a long list of neutral ships which have been illegally interfered with by the British. This list, with the details in each case, constitutes, in effect, the indictment against Great Britain on which the note proper is based.

The note groups the causes for protest by the United States under three heads. Under these are covered all the acts which are held to have infringed upon American trade rights. The three groups of offenses are:

First, the seizure and detention of vessels on the high seas on mere suspicion; second, the so called blockade policy; third, the unsatisfactory and unacceptable character of the regulations governing and the procedure of British prize courts.

The American protest on these three grounds of complaint is summarized in the note as follows:

"I believe it has been conclusively shown that the methods sought to be employed by Great Britain to obtain and use evidence of enemy destination of cargoes bound for neutral ports and to impose a contraband character upon such cargoes are without justification; that the blockade, upon which such methods are partly founded, is ineffective, illegal and indefensible; that the judicial procedure offered as a means for reparation for an international injury is inherently defective for the purpose, and that in many cases jurisdiction is asserted in violation of the law of nations."

The note adds the additional warning that the United States "can not submit to the curtailment of its neutral rights by these measures" or "with complacency suffer further subordination of its rights and interests to the plea that the exceptional geographic position of the enemies of Great Britain require or justify oppressive and illegal practices."

Attacks British Course.

The newest matter in the note is that relating to the British prize courts. The note contends that the British prize courts acquire jurisdiction over neutral vessels by unlawful means. British authorities, acting under British orders in council, many of which this government regards as in contravention of international law, seize neutral vessels on the high seas on mere suspicion and take them into British ports, where they are within the territorial jurisdiction of British domestic law. The British have no right, it is alleged, to extend domestic law, such as the orders in council, to cover seizures on the high seas. The prize courts, it is further alleged, are bound by the same orders in council, which are held to be in violation of international law.

With reference to the British claim that the United States took a similar position in the civil war and referred foreign claimants to prize courts for redress, the United States note declares that Great Britain is mistaken.

Furthermore, it is pointed out by the United States that the British prize courts offer no means of reparation for disastrous effects of British practices upon American trade. Fear of British practices, it is asserted, has caused Americans to shun certain trades, has forced insurance rates up and acted as a general deterrent upon American trade with neutrals.

With respect to the British blockade, the United States holds that it is not a blockade in law, practice or effect. It is not effective in that German coasts are open to Scandinavian trade; it is not impartial because the northern neutrals are free to trade with Germany while the United States is virtually debared from such trade.

Finally, the note asserts that Great Britain herself had admitted increased exports to Scandinavian countries which are free to trade with Germany, and adds that certainly a blockade can not be considered effective if belligerents themselves are trading with the supposedly blockaded country.

Former Protest Renewed.

The protest of nearly a year ago against British seizures and detentions of American ships and cargoes is renewed with increased vigor. This government regrets that its hope, based on the British promises to exercise their belligerent rights "with every possible consideration for the interest of neutrals," has not been realized. Instead of becoming less burdensome the British practices have turned out to be "increasingly vexatious." International law has been violated, it is alleged, in seizures of neutral vessels on the high seas, in the conveying of them to British ports and in their detention in British jurisdiction while efforts are made to obtain evidence in proof of the presence of contraband or of hostile destination.

The United States demands that searches be made entirely at sea and that no vessel be taken, as Great Britain has been taking them, into port unless evidence is found on board her, in goods or in paper, sufficient to warrant a hearing before a prize court. The British procedure of introducing "extrinsic evidence" beyond what was obtained on the vessel herself is in conflict with previous British practice, the note asserts, and with that of all other maritime powers.

The expert opinion of American naval officers and the orders of belligerent powers from 1888 to 1914 are cited to refute the British contention that search at sea is not practicable under modern conditions.

BIG PARADE IN THE WINDY CITY

Chicago, Nov. 8.—One hundred thousand persons marched through the streets in the downtown district in a parade protesting against Mayor Thompson's recent order reviving an old statute and closing the saloons of the city on Sunday. As the paraders marched, hundreds of men, supposed to be acting in the interest of the city administration, took their names. But while the watchers industriously scribbled names on blank forms furnished them for this purpose, they were in turn scrutinized by representatives of the United Societies for Self-government. Their names were taken and grand jury action, it is said, will be demanded on charges of conspiracy.

PROBING FIRE IN BIG FACTORY

New York, Nov. 8.—With twelve identified dead recovered and a renewed search being made of the ruins for the bodies of other victims, a report indicating that the fire which swept the five-story factory building in Williamsburg was of incendiary origin became a matter of official investigation. Police Captain Shaw said that after careful study of the lists of persons employed in the various companies having headquarters in the burned building, they had reached the conclusion that it was unlikely that more than one other person beside twelve victims whose bodies have been found perished in the fire.

Round 2.—Mrs. Gotlots opens with a rush, with sunburst flashing. Mrs. Scads swings out black pearl necklace, at same time bringing left hand, with eighteen jewels, to view. Mrs. Gotlots comes back with gold fan, set with twenty-eight gems, carelessly on edge of table. Mrs. Scads spars for time.

THE UBQUITOUS TURKEY.

He Has Spread All Over the World Despite His Retiring Ways.

In every corner of the globe almost, at least where civilization has spread its epicurean taste, may be found the domesticated turkey—not, however, of his own volition. Never would he, in his wild state, have sought to cross the stormy seas to find green fields and pastures new.

He is not so constructed. He is not bold or adventurous of disposition. On the contrary, he is timid and much afraid of things he does not understand and when undisturbed is prone to let well enough alone and get along with his accustomed feeding grounds.

Again, as a flier the turkey is not a pronounced success. He flies ponderously, almost painfully and with great effort and only when very much frightened. His flight can be sustained for only a short distance, but what the wild turkey lacks as an aviator he fully makes up as a sprinter.

He can outrun a race horse, especially in his own native forest, where undergrowth and bushes seem but to add to his speed. But he could not have flown over the ocean even if he

The Vampire Bat.

The true vampire bat is a quite insignificant creature, not unlike our noctule bat in general appearance and size, but with a small "nose leaf" and no web between the hind legs. The really remarkable thing about it is its perfect adaptation for secret and painless bloodletting. Most bats have teeth very like those of the carnivora, with long canines and small incisors, but in the true bloodsucking vampire bat the incisors are very large and broad and exceedingly sharp edged, thus being able to inflict a shaving surface cut which causes no pain, but a great deal of bleeding. Indeed, not only does the sleeper very rarely wake under the winged bloodletter's attentions, but a bite may be inflicted on a person who is awake at the time.—London Graphic.

Bowser Won't Lecture

Because Mrs. Bowser Laughed at Him.

By M. QUAD
Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Mr. Bowser had carried a very sober face for two or three days. He had not lost his wallet, fallen down the cellar stairs or missed a chance to go to the north pole. Yet he talked very little and seemed to be thinking deeply. The cook was worried for fear that her last apple pie had brought indigestion upon him, in which case she might expect to be sued for heavy damages. Mrs. Bowser was puzzled, but not worried. Mr. Bowser can keep a secret sorrow locked up in his manly breast only two or three days. Then it comes out. If he should be guilty of murder he would be forced to make a confession and thereby hang himself. In this case she gave him rope and said nothing. She did not even pretend to notice that a horse blanket had settled over his usually happy life. The hour came when the cat hid away under the piano, the nightingale ceased his song and the moon went behind a dark cloud to await events. "Mrs. Bowser," began Mr. Bowser after a long and sulky silence, "several years ago words and actions on your part spoiled the prospects of my reaping a fortune." "I don't remember any such event," replied Mrs. Bowser. "Then let me call your memory to the fact that I had a great offer from a lecture bureau. I was to receive $200 a night, but you promptly cried me down, as you generally do. Rather than have a family row I gave up the project and have had to work like a

CABINET FORMED BY NEW PREMIER

Will Maintain Government's Plan of Neutrality.

GREECE NOT TO AID ALLIES

Austro-German Forces Operating in Serbia Reported to Be Advancing All Along the Line—French Said to Have Crossed the Bulgarian Frontier—Russians Active West of Riga and Near Dvinsk.

London, Nov. 8.—The Russians, according to a dispatch from Petrograd received here, have extended their attacks to the district west of Riga and thence to the south of Dvinsk. They are keeping the Germans on the move and the latter admit that in the region of Lake Sventen the Russians penetrated their lines. The Russians claim to have taken 8,000 prisoners by a thrust across the Stripa, while the Germans declare that they have captured 6,000.

The Italians continue their offensive, but on the western front the fighting consists only of local engagements.

M. Skoulioudis, the new premier, accepted and performed the task of organizing the Greek cabinet, which being composed of all the members of the Zaimis government with the exception of the ex-premier himself, will carry on the former government's policy of maintaining neutrality.

The new cabinet is at the mercy of the Venizelos majority in the chamber, but the impression is that no attempt will be made to turn it out, thus avoiding dissolution of parliament and a consequent election.

While the allies now have little hope of Greece aiding them in the defense of Serbia, the belief is still held here that it is not too late to turn the tables on the invaders. The departure for the east of Lord Kitchener, after conferences in Paris with Premier Briand, General Gallieni, the war minister, and General Joffre, the commander in chief of the field forces, has given confidence that the campaign is to be carried on energetically by the man who knows the east better than almost anyone else.

Advices from Saloniki and other points show that much larger forces than were thought to be near the scene are being landed at Saloniki and are proceeding to points where it is believed they can do the most good. Meanwhile, in northern and eastern Serbia and on the Montenegrin frontier big battles are in progress. The Austro-Germans claim to be advancing all along the line and to have reached the Morava river, which has been crossed at some points. In their advance they are picking up prisoners, guns and war material.

The Montenegrins, like their Serbian allies, are fighting stubbornly in defense of their country, and report that they have repulsed an attempt by the Austrians to cross the border from Herzegovina and captured four guns, a quantity of supplies and a few men. In the south the French are reported to be over the Bulgarian frontier, where they have taken several villages. It would appear, therefore, that the central powers, who have obtained their initial objective, the opening of the road to Sofia and Constantinople, have a lot of fighting ahead of them if Serbia is to be overwhelmed.

It say 'Charles Lightfoot, President of the Lightfoot Lecture Bureau? And doesn't it give the street and number of his office?' "Yes, it does," replied Mrs. Bowser after looking at the card. "But have you been up there to see if there is such a bureau? Have you made any inquiries about this Mr. Lightfoot?" "No," thundered Mr. Bowser as he waved his arms about and stamped up and down the room.

"Mr. Bowser," quietly said Mrs. Bowser, after a moment, "let us talk this thing over in a sensible manner. It is a matter of interest to me as well as to you. I do not pretend to be a business woman, but you must admit that I have at least a fair amount of common sense. Don't get excited while I ask you a few questions. Will you talk with me?"

"Go ahead," growled the would be lecturer as he folded his arms and stood with his back against the mantel.

"There are four or five good business men who have offices near yours. Have you told them of this offer?" "I can't say that I have. But what business is it of theirs?"

"I will venture to say they would tell you the same as I shall. Is he a responsible man? Has he a lecture bureau? Why did he come to you and make such an unheard of offer? Don't you know, Mr. Bowser, that the lecturer thinks himself well paid if he gets $50 or $75 a week? And he must be a well known lecturer to receive that. What sort of lecture have you got up your sleeve to be paid $200 a night? Perhaps Mr. Bryan would get that for one night, but I can't think of any other person who would."

"Find all the fault you can," growled Mr. Bowser.

"Did this Mr. Lightfoot claim that he has heard of you as a noted lecturer?" continued Mrs. Bowser.

"I told him that I had never lectured, but he said I could break into the field in a week and was sure I would be a drawing card."

"Well, take it that Mr. Lightfoot has a bureau and would sign a contract with you and carry out his part of it, there is still another side to which I wish to refer. You must take it kindly, Mr. Bowser. You must remember that as a wife I have your interests at heart. There are certain spots in your personal armor which would work against your success as a lecturer. Don't cringe now when I say that you are not a magnetic man."

"Oh, you have made a discovery, have you?" hoarsely whispered Mr. Bowser.

"I have always known it, but you are the man I loved and married and have an interest in. You have a very poor voice for delivery. Sometimes your voice is away down to the top button of your vest, and sometimes it is away up in G. It is often very hard for the cook to understand you. "But your first offer was no offer at all, and how do you know that this man is not of the same stripe as the other?"

"My Lord, woman, haven't I got his business card here? There it is. Doesn't it say 'Charles Lightfoot, President of the Lightfoot Lecture Bureau? And doesn't it give the street and number of his office?'"

"Yes, it does," replied Mrs. Bowser after looking at the card. "But have you been up there to see if there is such a bureau? Have you made any inquiries about this Mr. Lightfoot?"

first requisite, as I understand it, is a good voice for delivery and that you sure have not got. President Wilson can speak to 4,000 people, but you cannot speak to forty. I see that you are humiliated and indignant, but it is not your fault."

Mr. Bowser made no reply to this, but he took it out in glaring at the wise little wife.

"There is one more point," said Mrs. Bowser as she made her voice as soothing as possible. "You must have an original lecture. Where are you going to get it? It must be your own brain work, and you'll be angry with me when I doubt that you could write a lecture that would interest five people. What is to be the title of the lecture? And how do you propose to handle it? Come, now, confide in me and let's see if I could possibly aid you."

"Never mind, my dear woman," replied Mr. Bowser, with a half smile on his face. "I am expecting President Lightfoot at any moment, and I will let him answer all your questions. In this case, Mrs. Bowser, a humiliating surprise awaits you. There is the bell."

The cook was just coming up the basement stairs, and it was she who opened the door to the great lecture bureau man. He was ushered into the sitting room and seemed greatly embarrassed at sight of Mrs. Bowser. On her part she gave him a keen looking over and then turned to Mr. Bowser and said:

"Do you remember about six months ago I told you that I saw a man arrested for pocket picking on a street car? This is the man!"

The embarrassment was bigger than a house. Mr. Bowser tried to say something, but his tongue refused to act as usual. Mr. Lightfoot turned seven different shades of color and lemon yellow in addition, and in backing down the hall to get out of the house as soon as possible he struck a chair with his heel and fell and rolled over twice.

Mr. Bowser was silent and immovable.

Mrs. Bowser was silent, but her face wore a smile.

When the gate was banging to and the echo had died away Mrs. Bowser sat down and began reading a book.

Mr. Bowser softly took his way to the library, and an hour later, when Mrs. Bowser looked in on him, he had chewed up five blotter pads and was then at work on his third penholder. He will not take the lecture field for some time to come, and it will be an ever wrong for him to lay up against Mrs. Bowser.

If Mackensen, Hindenburg, Von Beseler, Joffre, Kitchener and French had been chloroformed at sixty by Oster the history of the world war would surely have been different, although who can say it would have been better for any concerned?

Whether our football players could learn something of frightfulness by serving on the western battle front or Europe's soldiers could pick up points on the American gridiron remains a moot question.

There's nothing new nor especially commendable in the attitude of the man "opposed to war, but in case of need ready to support my country." That's the spirit of all peoples in all times, and the joker lies in the "case of need" proviso.

THINGS DOING AT THE MOVIES

WONDERLAND.

Charming Hazel Dawn is a welcome visitor at the Wonderland Theater Wednesday in a Paramount production of "Niobe." The play has been prepared with great care and Miss Dawn's work finds strong support in that of Victor Moore.

Another Paramount Friday, "Help wanted," gives Lois Meredith a wide liberty for her exceptional talents. The picture goes five reels.

Monday the Wonderland has a top notch Vitagraph parody of three reels, entitled "Miss Jeckyll and Madam Hyde."

Tuesday—Last of the Elaine romances.

COLONIAL.

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday are all dates of more than ordinary importance at the Colonial.

Lionel Barrymore and Jane Grey, one of the strongest feature teams of the screen, occupy the lead roles in "The Flaming Sword," a sea romance of five parts, showing at the Colonial Tuesday.

Wednesday brings another Fox picture, "The Family Stain," an inspiring detective story which the acting of Frederick Perry, star of "Dr. Rameau," raises a few notches above the usual detective picturization.

"The Battle of the Sexes" Thursday is a play of vital appeal to all. It is woven about the much disputed "single standard of morals" question. D. W. Griffith directed the making of this picture.

Monday the Colonial has "The Charm Against Harm," the eighteenth installment of the Diamond from The Sky features.

PALACE.

The headline at the Palace this week will be "The Vanderhoff Affair," Thursday, starring Hal Forde, Broadway favorite, in four acts. Mr. Forde, it will be remembered, occupied the star role of Baron Charles in "Made in America" at the Winter Garden, and was prominent in the recent production of "The Purple Robe," at the Liberty Theater, New York City. He appeared at the Palace some time ago in "The Runaway Wife."

Monday—Augusta Anderson in "The Wheel of the Gods," two act Biograph.

Wednesday—"The Witness," featuring Lillie Leslie; three act Lubin.

Friday—Vitagraph three act feature, entitled "My Lost One," with an all star cast.

Saturday—"Country Blood," 3-act Lubin with Romaine Fielding.

WHISKEY MEN ASK CHANGE

By Associated Press.

Chicago, November 8.—Appeal for revision of the Sunday saloon closing law, giving cities home rule on the question, will be made to Governor Dunne today by the saloon interests, who yesterday held a street parade in the downtown districts as a protest against Mayor Thompson's order closing Sunday saloons in Chicago.

More than 40,000 persons, by actual count of tabulators employed by newspapers, participated in the parade.

Officials of the united societies, however, said the total number of marchers was 101,000.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Rapid Eating.

Few people really masticate their food properly or eat as slowly as they should in spite of all the advice and warnings of physicians. Still we will add one more word. Don't let the children bolt their breakfasts or any other meal for that matter. Ten per cent of the school children of America suffer from malnutrition, and malnutrition is as often due to rapid eating as to under-eating.

HER NEWEST PHOTO.

It Was Well Taken, Too, Just as She Intended It Should Be.

[A dialogue between him and her.]
"What have you got there?"
"Where?"
"In your hands behind your back."
"I'm not going to show you!"
"Ah, please do."
"Promise you won't try to take it away from me?"

He sneaks up close to the girl, who furtively holds before him a photo, which he clutches with both hands.

"That's beautiful!"
"Do you really think so?"
"Yes, pretty nice. But you are much more beautiful, you know."

"Now you're flattering me. I think I look just horrid in it."
"Oh, you don't. Aren't you going to give this one to me?"

The girl flies to the other side of the room in evident terror. The youth struggles manfully (quite easily) to wrench the photo from her grasp.

"Give it back to me! Please give it back," she pleads.
"Give it back? I guess not!"
"I think you're just the meanest thing!"

In a little while they quiet down, and despite the fact that she continues to coax him for the photo every few minutes he carries it away with him. She goes to bed perfectly happy, for she intended that he should have it—in fact, had it taken especially for him.—Detroit Free Press.

Adage For Adage.

"A stitch in time," you know, "saves nine."
"I said when Mabel tore her dress."
"I wish you'd mend it right away."
"I do dislike untidiness!"

For several days I kept this up. But now my nagging's ended. Because she came back at me with, "Less said, the sooner mended!"
—Woman's Home Companion.

Fairly Warned.

"What's the value of that trunk?" inquired the baggage man.
"You mean my wife's trunk over there?" asked the man, who was smoking a Pittsburgh stogie in a gold mounted meers-hum holder.
"Yes."
"Well, my private opinion is that the whole outfit ain't worth $4. But if you had ever seen my wife get really riled you wouldn't lose it for a million."
—Washington Star.

Watchful waiting for an adequate army and navy should be the kind with a punch in it.

The appeal of King George V. for volunteers to save the country is at once pathetic and suggestive. The appeal is addressed to "my subjects" for "my empire," and so on. It is a monarch's call, not a national slogan. Others have appealed in the name of the nation and of the government and failed. The king's attitude appears like a forlorn hope, a last attempt to reach the heart of Britons. Will they rally for their king? England's monarch has long been a mere figurehead, and royalty is a survival, a decaying, not a constructive force. The people maintain it as an institution contributing to national development. Fifty years ago, when the best of the civilized world was studying republican liberty, it was said by Englishmen as well as outside observers that the monarchy would probably die with Queen Victoria. But the queen outlasted that era, and new questions made the continuance of royalty necessary for peace. The war puts a new test upon royalty and gives it a chance to make good. A charm in the voice or person of the king on the throne which the nation would heed in the hour of disaster would make him ruler in a sense unknown to Britons for two generations. Such an event might enthrone royalty above politics and write a new chapter in English history.

The report of the Carnegie peace endowment commission on the state of war in the Balkans two years ago is timely. Referring to the atrocities, of which glaring accounts were printed at the time, the commission says: "The worst atrocities were not due to the excesses of the regular soldiery. The population mutually slaughtered with a ferocity heightened by mutual knowledge and the old hatreds and resentments they cherished." There will be more lurid tales of atrocities from the near east, and it is well to be reminded that the soldiery are not the only offenders nor the worst. The brutalization of soldiers is not the main count in the indictment against war. It also brutalizes civilians, women and children among them.

Among the various motives assigned for the great war acquisition of territory and trade expansion are conspicuous if not overpowering. When the war ends there will be the same motives at work among nations which lose, for all cannot win, and they will be well organized for the new commercial struggle. In that conflict the United States dare not be neutral, and this is the time to organize the forces which will be brought into play.

As to means and methods for national defense it is pertinent to ask what has become of the system of inland waterways which experts and commissions planned over years ago. As long ago as the civil war President Lincoln recommended to congress a military canal connecting the east and the west.

When the soldiers get home from the big war will they push aside the women mechanics, mail carriers, car conductors, policemen and the like and take their old jobs back or loaf, Indian fashion, and let the "squaws" do the hard labor?

The proposed work of adding letters to our alphabet and generally reconstructing the language will afford endless amusement for all, providing the reform stops short of sending busy adults back to their spelling books.

Game protection laws work fairly well for the conservation of bird and animal life, but the hunter still has to take chances on a bullet not meant for him but a killer just the same.

The "go to the doctor week" is one way to do yeoman's work for national defense after all the fine talk about it the last few years—defense against disease and inefficiency.

Nothing startling about that new old stocking fad, because stockings have long been an odd sort of get up

Newspaper Advertising

Goes direct to the people and the people constitute the buying public. Newspaper advertising not only talks but it emphasizes; it has the undivided attention of the reader and covers a field no salesman can hope to reach. There are many styles in newspaper advertising and the small announcement, which costs only five cents, is just as effective in its way as the larger one, which costs proportionately more. The benefits to be derived can not be measured by the size of the ad, for the very good reason that the small, inexpensive announcement invariably proves effective. Newspaper advertising costs from five cents up to any price the advertiser desires to pay.

ANCIENT BAGDAD.

Its Ruined Mosques, Crumbling Walls and Rich Bazaars.

Squalor and ruin are the present characteristics of ancient Bagdad, the once beautiful city of "The Arabian Nights." Of its famous hundred mosques only about thirty are now in use. Several are so dilapidated that their crumbling roofs and walls threaten the lives of the devout who still worship in them.

The one splendid wall, built of the handsome Arabian brick and extending around the city a distance of five miles, still stands, but it is broken in many places. The four original gates remain, and the oldest and finest one, bearing the date of 1220, has not been opened since the middle of the seventeenth century.

The famous river Tigris, a muddy stream flowing sluggishly during the greater part of the year, divides Bagdad into two parts, which are connected by a rickety bridge of boats nearly 200 feet long. When the snow melts upon the Armenian mountains the Tigris rises, sometimes floods part of the city and often carries away the bridge.

The bazaars of Bagdad exhibit rich merchandise of many kinds, including Turkish and European products, both modern and antique, and are the most attractive part of the city.—New York Tribune.

FATE OF A PIRATE CREW.

Strange Case of the Nancy Brig and a Hungry Shark.

In the museum at Kingston, Jamaica, there are some tattered ships' papers, brown with age and salt water, and a small tin canister. These articles attest the truth of the strangest pirate story ever told.

In 1739 the crew of the Nancy brig were apparently honest traders, but did some piracy now and then on the side. One day they found it necessary to go into Kingston for supplies. Before doing so they naturally removed all traces of their buccaneering trade. Among other things they threw overboard this tin canister stuffed with papers taken from ships they had sunk, with comments written on the margin by the pirate captain.

Later in the day a British frigate was becalmed near the spot, and the sailors spent their leisure catching sharks. Presently they hauled up a big fellow, cut him open and found the tin case with the papers inside. These were taken to the captain, who, as soon as a breeze sprang up, sailed into Kingston harbor, found the Nancy brig there and had the crew tried, convicted and hanged in chains at Port Royal.

Beautiful Blue Lake.

Perhaps the most striking instance to be seen in the whole world of the wonderful apparent coloring of bodies of water is the marvelously beautiful Blue lake in Switzerland. Encompassed on all sides by lofty mountains, their lower ranges luxuriantly clothed with verdure down to the edge of the water and adorned with many fine forest trees, while their higher elevations are garbed in a mantle of eternal snow, the little lake, nestling in its deep hollow basin, is quite startling in its singular and strange beauty. The water, although really pure and colorless, appears to be of a most intense sky blue. And its transparency is so remarkable that a small coin dropped into the water in the center of the lake can be seen until it reaches the bottom, apparently more than a hundred feet beneath.

Finger Nails Show Health.

Our finger nails are made of a horny material that is in some ways like the material that makes our skin. But it is more like the material that makes our hair. It is after all different from either of these and is more like horn than any other part of our bodies. The special cells at the base of the nails form the material for our nails and therefore the health of our finger nails depends on these cells. If you are not in good health or if you do not take good care of your skin your finger nails will show that they are not healthy. If your blood is out of order the cells that make the finger nails will not do their work properly and then little white spots will appear on the nails. So you see those little white spots are a sign of bad health.—Kansas City Star.

Could Lift a Ton and a Half.

A Scotchman, said to be the last of the Stuarts, was possessed with an extraordinary strength, from which circumstance he got the byname of Jemmy Strength. Among other feats, he could carry a twenty-four pounder cannon and had been known to lift a cart-load of hay weighing a ton and a half upon his back. Many a time he took up a jackass and, carrying it on his shoulders, walked through the tollgate.

Handicapped.

"A rich woman misses much in life." "As to how?" "She can't run out to the back fence when she gets hold of a choice bit of gossip. She has to get up a tea or reception, and by that time the news is stale."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

He Meant Well.

Niece—I do think you are clever, aunt, to be able to argue with the professor about sociology. Aunt—I've only been concealing my ignorance, dear. Professor Bilks (gallantly)—Oh, no, Miss Knowles; quite the contrary, I assure you.—Boston Transcript.

An Ominous Hint.

"Sir, I want to ask you for your laughter's hand." "All right, sonny. You'll find it in my pocket."—Baltimore American.

Consider the Trees.

The trees are lovely in summer; so are the women. But how different are the women and the trees as to their clothes! To be sure, both are delightfully clothed, yet, with the abundant raiment with which the trees are supplied, they require but one trunk to hold it all.—Smart Set.

A Queer Lack.

"Wouldn't you like to visit the great desert?" "Indeed I would, but I haven't got the sand."—Exchange.

Usually the Way.

Maud—How do you know?
"She told me so."
